ROSY SAYS: Good bye Mr. Smith. Orville Smith has probably done more to help build Heppner, stabilize employment and change the way of life of more people than any man that has ever lived in Heppner. It is with regret I learned that he and his family had moved away. The best wishes of the people of Heppner go with you to your new location. P. S. Right after "The Toast of the Town" at 7:00 p. m. Sunday on TV you will still have time to the Star Theater and see "A Man Called Peter" playing Sunday and Monday. I urge you to see this picture.

Strange Ways People Lose Money

A lady in Hutchinson, Kansas sent the mutilated crumbs of ten and twenty dollar bills to the U. S. Treasury explaining that rats had eaten them. Some were pieced together and she was reimbursed. Most of it was lost.

In Menominee, Wisconsin a farmer lost his billfold in the field. Two days later he was slaughtering a calf and discovered the lost bills in its stomach. He got a full redemption from the Treasury.

Many people hide money in a receptacle and place it in the furnace. U. S. Treasury restorers can sometimes identify burned money, even when nearly reduced to ash—but not always!

In Atlanta, Georgia a recluse died with a will leaving $22,000 he had stored in a mason jar. They found the money—but mold and damp had solidified it so it couldn't be pried apart. X-rays saved some; most was lost.

There are lots of ways to lose money—especially when you are traveling. You leave it in a hotel room, send it to a cleaner; it may fall from your pocket, be left on a restaurant table or lost on the many occasions when you handle cash. However, American Express Travelers Cheques can never be "lost." Full redemption is made because no one but you can spend them.

CAPITAL PARADE

received when she drove her car off the pavement at the end of a city street, was reversed this week by the State Supreme Court, in an opinion by Justice Earl C. Latourette.

The court held that while the absence of warnings or barricades at the end of the street constituted a defect in the street, the City of Portland was absolved from liability by the express language of an exemption provision in the city charter.

MECHANICAL RECORDER O. K.
Mechanical recorders can be used in the conduct of labor dispute hearings to record testimony of witnesses, Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton held in an opinion this week.

The opinion was requested by Fred G. Scherer, State Labor Examiner.
"In promulgating a rule or regulation describing the manner of recording testimony the labor examiner should be guided by those methods approved by the legislature in the conduct of court proceedings," Thornton averred.

Thornton said during the recent legislature a law was passed to permit the use of mechanical electrical or electronic devices in making audio records of testimony when the same is used in connection with, and in addition to, the taking of testimony by shorthand notes or mechanical typing devices using paper tapes.

TREASURER UNANDER HONORED
The Legion of Honor, the highest in the gift of France, was recently conferred upon Oregon's State Treasurer, Sig Unander, who returned from Paris this week. The award was in recognition of Unander's contribution to France during World War II.

Unander was a colonel in the army, serving in France, Italy and North Africa.
In France and Italy the average workingman has improved his economical condition markedly since the last war and the people are now getting enough food which was scarce during the war. Rents are controlled by the government and are very low.

Mrs. Unander accompanied the treasurer to Paris and on a continental trip including Italy, where food, they reported, is cheaper than in France. They left Paris Monday morning, continental time, and arrived in New York Tuesday morning.

In New York, as Oregon's State Treasurer, he signed $700,000 worth of Oregon State Forestry bonds. They were turned over to the First National Bank of New York.

TOUR OF STATE'S PARKS
A four-day 1,206-mile inspection trip of Oregon's highways and state parks will be made by the Oregon State Highway Commission next week, beginning July 11.

The commission, accompanied by representatives of the press, highway interim committee, parks advisory committee, state parks superintendent and representatives of the Bureau of Public Roads, U. S. Forest Service and Automobile Club, will leave Portland on U. S. Highway 30 in-physician for the state industrial accident commission.

He is not happy about the answer a Marion County judge, Val Sloper, gave in a declaratory judgment last January. Sloper cited provisions of the state constitution which states that no person charged with official duties under one of the three divisions of government shall exercise any of the functions on another unless expressly provided.
Rep. Dammasch has given notice that he will appeal the case to the Oregon Supreme Court.
Three other members of the legislature, Harvey H. DeArmond, George H. Layman and Ben Anderson, are serving as Dammasch's attorneys.
Mr. and Mrs. Frank Adkins visited the Tri-City area in Washington at the home of their nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Canoy, over the Fourth of July. They had a visit with Mrs. Adkins' brother, William Canoy of Boise, Idaho who was also visiting at the Floyd Canoy home.
