Clean-Up Tips for the Do-It-Yourself Painter

Cleaning up is something few of us enjoy whether it means washing the dishes after a party or restoring order after giving the living room woodwork a new coat of paint. If you are planning a spot of do-it-yourself painting to freshen up your home, here are a few pointers that will make the clean-up much less a chore.

Before painting either woodwork or furniture, remove as much of the hardware as you can. Get the bottle of baby oil out of the medicine cabinet and spread a film of the oil over the hardware you can't remove. At the same time, smooth the baby oil over your own hands. This will make it easy to wipe off any paint that may get on your hands or the hardware.

Glue a paper plate to the bottom of the paint can to catch drip that runs down the sides. This is a lot better than placing the can on newspapers that are hard to handle when you want to move the can. If you are painting from a small can you can put the can in an old cup. The cup will catch the drip and if you hold it by the handle you won't smear your hands.

Drive a tack into the handle of your paint brush, just above the metal collar, so that you can hang it neatly inside the can when you take time out for coffee or a cigarette. If you punch a dozen holes in the rim of the can, using a hammer and large nail, paint won't collect in the rim and won't spatter when you replace the cover.

Use turpentine and a soft cloth to wipe paint spots off the floor, and be sure to wipe before the paint dries. Lemon oil is better than turpentine for removing spots from furniture, because it is less likely to mar the finish.

will be held Sunday, August 14, at Benson state park.

The answer to everyday insurance problems*
By Turner Van Marter & Bryant

QUESTION: Some young friends of mine in another town are running a small new business rather successfully but they are heavily in debt both in the business and personally. I've mentioned Business Interruption insurance to them as a good buy but they think they should wait until they are in a little better financial position. What do you think?

ANSWER: Various Business Interruption policies provide gross income, net profit or fixed expense payments during a period when normal business is stopped by fire. A new business such as you describe is the very best type of prospect. Without the insurance how could the owners survive a long period with no income? How would they handle their personal and business obligations?

*If you'll address your own insurance questions to this office, we'll try to give you the correct answers and there will be no charge or obligation of any kind.

A Good Turn For Motorists

Most people consider a car the second-biggest purchase they'll ever make. Anything that extends its life or improves performance naturally contributes to your pocketbook as well as your motoring pleasure. Since our new "Detergent-Action" Gasolines do both, they're prime examples of Standard's planning for you.

These new gasolines are made in complicated plants called catalytic reformers. Standard has built 4 of them in the West to make the cleaner-burning, more powerful motor fuels required for best performance of today's higher compression engines. This program was two years in planning and building—cost $50 million.

This $50 million worth of plants is only part of the $350 million Standard is investing this year to make petroleum more useful and plentiful. Some of it will go for product research, part will pay for new manufacturing facilities. A good share will finance the search for new sources of oil to help supply the 733 gallons a year per person that go into thousands of oil-born products essential to modern living.

So the $350 million is an investment in your future as well as ours. It's one way Standard helps to guarantee that there'll be plenty of oil to do more jobs today and in the years to come.
