semble was washable. A cotton peasant skirt and blouse were shown by Lorna Shannon in an unusual border print skirt and white blouse, with nylon ruffled half slip for fullness.

Mrs. Thornhill next appeared in a two-piece blue linen suit in crease resistant washable linen fabric. It had a full skirt and an Oriental neckline and was sleeveless.

Mrs. Tatone again appeared in an off white suit of rayon and silk for summer street wear. It had three-quarter length sleeves, and was worn with a nylon blouse and gloves in orchid, and two-toned orchid leather shoes and bag.

A vocal trio "Blue Skirt Waltz" was presented by Mrs. Claud Coats, Mrs. Nathan Thorpe and Mrs. Frank Marlow.

Fall fashions next appeared with Lorna Shannon first showing a washable orlon plaid skirt with permanent pleats. With this she wore a black orlon sweater with three-quarter push-up sleeves.

Mary Ann Rands wore a charcoal wool jumper with a long sleeved tailored blouse with French cuffs.

Mrs. Chambers was next wearing a pencil slim brown wool skirt with two-pocket detail, complimented by a beautiful tangerine sweater with three-quarter length push-up sleeves and white collar, closing at the throat with two small white covered buttons.

Suitable for any occasion was a red worsted suit worn by Mrs. Ronald Black, with the longer style jacket, three-quarter sleeves, and white linen over collar and pocket detail, worn over a pencil slim skirt. It would be equally effective with either white or black accessories.

For casual wear Lorna Shannon showed a sport suit of washable blue and grey plaid jacket and grey skirt, straight for slimmness with box pleats for walking comfort.

Mary Ann Rands modeled a three piece costume suit, a blue and black tweed coat with matching skirt, worn with a blue wool jersey blouse, which matched the lining of the coat. All three pieces could be worn with other outfits.

For afternoon wear Mrs. Dewey West wore a blue and green plaid sanforized cotton, with little buttons running down the front to a low gathered neckline. A crisp accent was white pique cuffs, and she carried a matching umbrella for protection from sun or rain.

Another afternoon outfit was worn by Mrs. Tatone, a grey cotton and nylon dress called "Black Ice". It had a low-belted hipline and large pearl buttons with double collar effect with a white pique topping. It had a zippered black closing all the way from the neckline to hipline. With it she wore a little red hat, interspersed with white. To complete her costume she wore large button type pearlized earrings and bracelet to match.

Mrs. Gladys Chambers modeled a Hawaiian dress, a sarong in pure silk in shades of blue and green, to be worn either with or without the button-on shoulder straps. It was topped with a small jacket, making it serve for many occasions. Complimenting the costume she wore real ivory earrings carved in the pattern of one of the islands' beautiful flowers—the Torch Ginger. This costume came from one of Honolulu's exclusive shops.

For formal wear Mrs. Chambers and Mary Ann Rands showed two cocktail dresses. Mrs. Chambers wearing a sparkling black taffeta, with pink used for contrast in the softening neckline inset and the painted-on flowers, and a wide stand-up collar lending a pretty effect to the slightly flared skirt. Mary Ann's dress was a light blue paper shantung, with short jacket. With it she wore matching blue shoes with very slim heels.

An orchid formal of ballerina length was worn by Mrs. Tatone in tulle over a satin slip, and a miniature bolero jacket. For accent, she wore dainty many-strapped gold sandals with the slenderest heels, and carried a gold bag.

Last, but not least, coats were shown. Mary Ann Rands first appeared wearing a short red coat, made of "Nub Sack" wool, with wide collar, and buttons at the hipline. Mrs. West came next showing a beige full-length coat for fall. It had a graceful collar and lapel detail which ran non-stop to the hemline. Again, the push-up sleeves were used. Mrs. Chambers appeared last in a cover-all topper coat, slightly flared for convenience. Four buttons near the collar were ornamental open or closed. The full dolman sleeves could be worn either pushed up or full length.

Concluding the program the trio sang "Till We Meet Again". Following the style show, refreshments were served by Mrs. Ray Gronquist and Mrs. Gunnar Skoubo.

CONSIDERATION!

Traffic deaths & injuries have Reached an appalling high! To reduce it, all must cooperate:
No driver can sit idly by!
Knights of old fought on horseback,
With trusty lance & shield!
Think they'd fight with cars rather Than right-of-way to yield?
Why gamble on winning in traffic?
Death holds trumps for life!
What if, you are a little bit late?
Better late than never arrive!
