exanthema, (VE) have been stamped out in California, and the last remaining federal quarantine against the disease in that state has been lifted. This action climaxed a twenty-four year battle by state and federal veterinarians to eradicate VE. from California, where the first cases of this virus in the United States were reported in 1932. It is also a victory in the nation-wide campaign waged against VE during the past four years. Early reports from the annual meeting of the Oregon Cattleman's Association which ended last Wednesday indicates progress in establishing a beef commission in Oregon soon. It was also reported that livestock men in committee favored a beef subsidy program patterned after the plan developed in Morrow county three years ago. At this time, the majority of Oregon cattlemen sampled by a survey were against price support or subsidy programs. The recent state meeting indicates that this has changed. Those who we have word of attending the state convention are Mr. and Mrs. John Graves, Hardman, Gerald Swaggart, Bill Weatherford and Frank Anderson, Hepner.
