Can Magic--Quick Fruit Platter

While we've usually plenty of fresh fruit, there are days and seasons of the year when the variety isn't all we could desire, so here's a hint from the country's biggest fruit growing area, Florida, for extending what fresh things we have on hand. Grand idea, too, for those times when company drops in and you haven't much in the fresh larder. It's a means of extending your fresh with Florida's fine canned grapefruit sections, so handy and economical.

Keep a can or two of the grapefruit sections in your freezing compartment and you can make this recipe do more than double duty. It can be salad, dessert, or first course with just the addition of a little fresh fruit in season and the turn of a can opener.

Frozen Grapefruit And Fruit Medley

- |   |                                   |
|---|-----------------------------------|
| 1 can (1-pound) Florida grapefruit sections | Honeydew melon slices             |
| Watermelon wedges                           | Cantaloupe slices                 |
|   | Fresh cherries, pitted and halved |

Place unopened can Florida grapefruit sections in freezing compartment of refrigerator several hours or overnight. When ready to serve, prepare fresh fruit. Open can of frozen sections at both ends; remove contents in one piece. Cut into 4 slices; serve with fruit.

YIELD: 4 servings.

Fair Winners Listed

Don Robinson of the Kirk and Robinson ranch copped the premier beef cattle award as the outstanding exhibitor at the Morrow county fair in addition to showing the champion bull and female in all classes Thursday. Large crowds viewed an array of agricultural and home economics exhibits and contests on the official opening day of the three-day show under sunny skies. In the open class sheep division Mike Palmer, Lexington, showed the grand champion and David Anderson, Heppner, the reserve champion ewe. D. O. Nelson, Lexington, walked off with the sweepstakes award in the grain division.

Man Wins Afghan Prize

A man broke through the home economics division with first prize when Rush Crabtree, Heppner, won first place with his crocheted afghan. Mrs. Blaine Chapel, Hardman, won grand champion in the national needlecraft contest and Mrs. Alex Green, Heppner, became eligible to enter the Oregon Wheat Growers league state bake-off contest at the annual state meeting in Portland next December when she won first place with her butter cake. Mrs. Ray Drake and Mrs. J. R. Huffman, both Heppner, placed second and third in the contest.

Winners in the 4-H livestock judging contest who will go as a judging team to the Pacific International Livestock Exposition in Portland in October were Kenneth Smouse, Ione, first, Carlene Rhea, Echo, second, and Sandra Beach, Lexington, third, Martha Doherty, Lexington, fourth place.

Steer Champion Chosen

Showing the grand champion 4-H fat steer was Gary Van Bockland, Heppner, and the reserve champion, Jerry Anderson, Heppner. Both won champion and reserve in the Hereford class and competed against Karl Beach, Lexington, with his champion Angus and Billy Doherty, Lexington, who showed champion and reserve Shorthorns.
