

Heppner Bows to Echo 26 to 6 in Final Game

By Jim Morris
Heppner's Mustangs ended their football season Monday, November 12 on their home field against their old rivals, the Echo Cougars and after the dust had cleared they emerged on the lean end of 26-6 score.

The game opened with the Mustangs receiving the kick-off and starting a drive which carried them to the Cougar's two yard line. But in a series of downs the Cougar defense held the Mustangs and they took the ball as the Mustangs failed to score.

From this point until the second quarter, neither team was able to get the ball within scoring distance.

In the second quadrant the Cougars were able to score twice while holding the Horsemen scoreless. Both of the Echo scores were set up by passes.

After the half time activities of court, the Mustangs were able to get a score but the Cougars racked up two more T. D.s and the game.

This loss was the sixth of the year for Heppner and it put their season record at 3-6. The Mustangs open their 1956 basketball season December 1 when they play in a Jamboree at Umatilla.

Joe Green of Pendleton was a guest of his mother, Mrs. Alex Green over the weekend and went on an elk hunting trip with his brother, Cornett Green.

Homemaking Students See Demonstrations

Last Wednesday Mrs. Marletta Scott, home economist for the H. B. Connolly Co. of Portland, gave an informative and interesting demonstration in the new home economics room of the Heppner school to the students in home economics, F. H. A. members and their mothers.

Mrs. Scott demonstrated a complete family oven dinner in one of the new ranges, also use of the griddle, deep-well cooker, broiler and other features of the new ranges to save the homemaker time, effort and energy with a minimum use of gas or electricity to cook a family meal.

She also demonstrated the laundering and drying of synthetic garments, cashmere sweaters, wool garments, lined orlon coats and other articles in the new washer and dryer.

This demonstration was made possible through the cooperation of the Dick Appliance Co. of Heppner and the Heppner chapter of F. H. A.

Mrs. Hager, local advisor of F. H. A. announced that the next evening meeting for members and mothers is scheduled for Wednesday, December 5 at the Heppner school.

Services Held For Henry Infant

Three Local Boys OSC Band Members

OREGON STATE COLLEGE—David Cox, Jim Hayes, both of Heppner, and Otto Ruhl of Lexington are members this fall of the Oregon State college "football band" one of the nation's top college marching units.

Members of the 90-piece, all-man band were picked in October tryouts by Ted Mesang, band director.

The band performs at all OSC home football games, including Portland contests, and this year went to the Stanford university game as special recognition.

All three students are graduates of Heppner high school.

Justice And Municipal Courts

Bicycle Awaits Claim of Owner

The Heppner police department has one good used bicycle on its hands that it would just as soon get rid of.

The bike was picked up in front of the Heppner Variety store several weeks ago after having been left there for some time, but police have received no reports of any bicycle being stolen.

The owner may claim it at the city hall.

DAUGHTER BORN TO STOUTS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stout, Jr. of Ketchikan, Alaska are the parents of a 5 lb. 8 oz. girl born November 8. She has been named Christie Lou.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stout, Sr. of Enterprise and Mrs. Glenn Irbly of Heppner are the grandparents.

EARLY NEWSPAPER COPY ASKED NEXT WEEK

Because of the Thanksgiving holiday, Thursday, Nov. 22, the Gazette Times asks correspondents and advertisers to get their copy in to the paper one day earlier than usual.

Except for subscribers who get their paper at the Heppner post office, the paper will not be delivered until Friday morning, but to give the staff the holiday it will be published on Wednesday.

New Chemical Weed Control Brightens Alfalfa Prospects

Oregon alfalfa production, hard pressed to keep pace with increasing livestock demands, received a boost this week with an announcement from Oregon State college that points to higher yields and longer-lived alfalfa stands through chemical weed control.

W. R. Furtick, OSC farm crop researcher, reports that three pounds of the new chemical Karmex DW applied with 30 gallons of water per acre gave excellent weed control of the most serious weed pests in Eastern Oregon alfalfa stands.

Scattered tests in Eastern Oregon, key source of hay for the entire state, showed that the best time to apply the material is between October 15 and December 15. It should not be applied until stands are at least one year old.

Announcement of the highly effective weed control program was held until this week, pending clearance by the federal food and drug administration that reported no Karmex DW "carry-over" in either milk or meat of animals fed hay from treated plots. Furtick said the three-pound rate is for 80 percent Karmex DW as sold commercially.

Yields of "pure alfalfa" from weed infested test fields were doubled at the first cutting, although total tonnage dropped slightly as a result of cleaning up weeds. Adjoining test plots not treated yielded about 50 percent weeds.

The treatment knocked out 90 percent of the cheatgrass and the Canada bluegrass and 100 percent of the annual foxtail barley that get the jump on alfalfa in the spring, shortening the life of the stand.

First alfalfa cuttings infested with foxtail barley are often rejected as a livestock feed, since the headed grass causes throat irritation and is not readily digestible.

Stored Grain Pest Controls Outlined

A new tri-state publication to help farmers combat insect problems in stored grain has been announced by the Oregon State college extension service. Copies are available from county extension agents and the OSC bulletin clerk, Corvallis.

Descriptions and drawings of major pests of stored grain, along with control methods, are included in the 10-page Pacific Northwest bulletin, "Insect Pests of ## Farm Stored Grain." The bulletin was prepared jointly by entomologists of OSC, University of Idaho, and State College of Washington.

A few unnoticed insects that are present when a grain bin is filled can multiply into damaging numbers within a few months the entomologists state. Infested or contaminated grain is subject to seizure in interstate commerce under U. S. food and drug administration safeguards of human health. Such grain may be reduced to livestock feed grade with the shipper standing the loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Tom of Rufus were calling in Heppner the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Gribble were in Portland the middle of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Thompson and daughter Janet of Pendleton, spent the weekend in Heppner.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gemmill of Salem, former Heppner residents, visited here over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Wyman of Prineville were guests last week at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wyman.

Denward Bergevin and Lester Wyman returned last Thursday from a moose hunting trip to Nempo, B. C. They got their moose.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rosewall spent the weekend visiting at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Tucker in Dayton, Washington.
