From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

The Kid's Learned to "Take Charge"

I was down at Buck Benson's store the other day when a fellow came in with a six-year-old boy—obviously his son.

While the fellow was looking over some stuff on the counter, Buck handed a free peppermint stick to the boy, who promptly tore off the wrapper and went to work on it.

The father seemed quite put out about his son's lack of manners and held up his hand to stop him. "What do we say when Mr. Benson gives us something?" he demanded. "Charge it," replied the kid without hesitation. From where I sit, children aren't the only ones who "repeat things" without knowing what they're talking about. For instance, I'm convinced that many of those who speak out against the old American custom of enjoying a glass of beer after work are just parroting what they've heard others say. It's better to get the facts—then make up our own minds—and permit our neighbors to do the same.

Standard's educational program helps provide college training for 286 students this year

Industry needs many trained minds with specialized knowledge. For example, the paleontologist who supplies accurate data for oil exploration by studying fossils of marine life from millions of years ago.

THEY CALL THIS THE ATOMIC AGE... the era of the "thinking" machine. But above all, this is the age of human thought. For today our country needs more and more skilled minds to harness our atoms, advance our culture and guide our government, Standard, too, needs fresh concepts to maintain its position in a highly competitive business. That's why this year Standard's educational program makes available, through colleges, 234 scholarships for undergraduate study, 52 fellowships for graduate work, plus a series of grants to universities.

In these ways, Standard affords young people throughout the country a better opportunity to contribute to their professions and communities.

Progress in the West means...

trained people will be needed to fill 2 1/2 million new jobs by 1965
