Land a Favorite with Hungry Anglers

Want a campfire meal that cooks in jig time? When you do, serve Barbecued Fish Sticks in Buns. Hungry picnickers, or anglers, will choose fish in the pan toasting for an uncertain catch. These precooked fish sticks, popular for outdoor cooking, are purchased cut to size.

Prepared as Barbecued Fish Sticks, everyone sniffs in anticipation as the aroma of this savory dish blends with the scent of hickory coals. The barbecue sauce, made in advance, is heated in a skillet until it bubbles merrily. The fish sticks are added and allowed to just heat. For easy out-of-hand eating, place the "stick" between buttered, split bakers' buns or slices of enriched bread. Roast fresh corn on the cob, which has been seasoned, buttered and wrapped in aluminum foil and served as the vegetable.

Barbecued Fish Sticks in Buns

2 tablespoons butter or margarine	1/2 cup or 1 (8-ounce) can tomato sauce
1/4 cup finely chopped onion	1/4 cup lemon juice
1 cup finely chopped celery	1 package frozen, precooked fish sticks
1/4 teaspoon tyme	5 sliced frankfurter buns
1/4 teaspoon rosemary

Melt butter in a small skillet. Add onion and celery and saute until tender. Blend in tyme, rosemary, tomato sauce and lemon juice. Simmer for 30 minutes. When thick, pour sauce into jar with tight cover. At picnic site, put sauce and fish sticks in small skillet. Heat through. To serve: Place 2 fish sticks and a little lemon barbecue sauce between bun halves.
Yield: 5 Barbecued Fish Sticks in Buns
