Research Reports Due at Pendleton Field Day July 2

A high-ranking aide to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson is scheduled to address Oregon wheat farmers July 2, at the annual Pendleton branch experiment station field day.

Milan Smith, executive assistant to Secretary Benson, will speak at the noon lunch at branch station headquarters, 14 miles northeast of Pendleton on the Walla Walla highway.

Reports of the station's research findings during the past year will start at 9 a.m. and continue through the afternoon, according to Merril Oveson, superintendent.

A crop spraying demonstration by helicopter, tours of greenhouses where winter-hardiness of grains and other research problems are tested, and demonstration of a new 4-bottom 2-way plow and an experimental grain drill are scheduled for the morning program.

A special program for ladies has been arranged this year, Oveson reports. Flower culture, including a demonstration of making flower cuttings, will open the program. From 11 a.m. to noon, Miss Naida Whybark, home economist for the Oregon Wheat Growers League will demonstrate use of an electronic oven. Slated for the afternoon is a demonstration of the Bishop sewin techniques.

The afternoon field day program will include reports on chemical removal of cheatgrass from fall-seeded wheat with Simazin, a chemical import from Switzerland. The material was applied just before wheat emerged last fall. Simazin also shows promise for chemical summer fallow of wheatlands.

Wheat seeding trials with the new Omar and Burt varieties, spring wheat and barley fertilizer trials, weed control in peas, and small grain variety trials will be seen during the tour. Trials with such special crops as safflower, carrots, sweet corn, and lima beans will be reported. Stubble mulch tillage and drill trials are also scheduled.

losis Hospital. The Salem bid was $100,620. Highest bid was $122,590.

Veteran Loans Mount

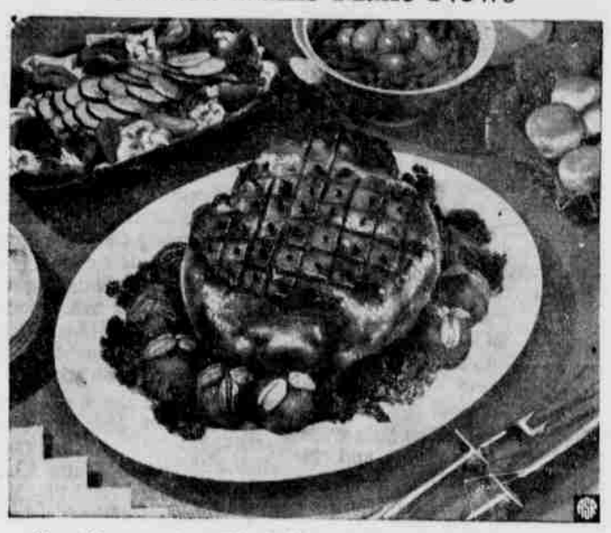
May was a record-breaking month for loan applications at the Oregon Department of Veteran Affairs when 924 home and farm loans were sought. The average for the six-month period prior to April for application was 574. Veterans are currently applying for state loans at the rate of 42 a day.

Employment Down

Employment in Oregon's nonagricultural activities were 2,800 below the 492,400 listed this week a year ago, although there was an increase of 9,000 last month, the state industrial unemployment compensation commission reported Monday.

The drop is not alone in logging and lumbering which failed to make the usual April-May gains. Food processing, machinery manufacturing and paper mills also fell short of 1956 totals as did plywood plants. Paper plants had 6,800 at work which compared with 7,000 in 1956.

Canned Hams Make News



New this year is a "No-Stick" can for whole hams. The old problem of getting meat out of the can has been solved by American Can Company research. They've developed a special inside enamel lining which allows the meat to slide freely right out of the can. You'll find this new convenience feature on canned hams of all sizes. So now when you buy canned ham, look for the small oval on the can and you'll know it's a ham packed in one of the new type containers.

To make meals easy, smart homemakers rely on canned ham because its solid meat, ready to eat, without waste or shrinkage. It is perfect to serve first hot and glazed, then sliced and served cold. And when the supply dwindles to bits and pieces, you've the choice makings of hearty salads, casseroles, soups or sandwiches. For a new and simple glaze:

MARMALADE GLAZED HAM

Spread a thin layer of prepared mustard over ham; then cover with orange or apricot marmalade. Bake in slow oven (325° F.), basting often with drippings in pan. Allow 25 minutes per pound for a 3 to 4 pound ham; allow 15 minutes per pound for the larger hams, spreading the marmalade for only the last hour of baking.
