Get Ready for A Cook-Out

If you belong to the charcoal cooking set, you're fully aware of the importance of being equipped with a truly superlative barbecue basting sauce recipe. In this highly competitive backyard sport, mediocrity spells failure; nothing but the best is even acknowledged.

The Mustard Barbecue Sauce, presented here, is guaranteed to boost your reputation as a barbecue chef. It's a brush-on sauce, delicious with chicken, and has a mildly sweet, spicy flavor. Use it to baste half chicken broilers cooked on a charcoal grill, for basting a roasting chicken cooked on a rotisserie, or as shown here, for basting individual poussins or Rock Cornish game hens.

Most distinguishing feature of this tantalizing sauce is that it's low in calories. Reason is that it makes use of the non-caloric sweetener, Sucaryl, rather than sugar. The calorie saving is really worthwhile. Just by the use of this sweetener, more than two-thirds of the total calories ordinarily contained in the sauce are eliminated. Be sure to tell your guests, for they won't be able to taste the difference.

Here's the recipe . . . and good luck!

MUSTARD BARBECUE SAUCE
(Low-Calorie)

2 egg yolks	1 tablespoon paprika
1 cup skim milk	2 teaspoons Sucaryl solution or
1 tablespoon flour	16 tablets, crushed
1 tablespoon dry mustard	1/2 cup vinegar

Beat egg yolks and milk together; gradually add to a mixture of the flour, mustard, paprika and Sucaryl, making a smooth paste. Cook in the top of a double boiler until thick, stirring constantly. Add vinegar gradually, and heat thoroughly. Use to baste chicken on rotisserie or barbecue grill.

Makes 1 1/2 cups of barbecue sauce. Each tablespoon contains 10 CALORIES; 0.6 gram protein; 0.5 gram fat; 1 gram carbohydrate. If made with sugar, each tablespoon would contain 40 CALORIES.

"To Know How to Grow Old is the Masterwork of Wisdom"

By Phil Blakney

Not so long ago there were fewer old folks because the average person who reached fifty was considered lucky. Now with an average life expectancy of about 70 years, there are many more people who are old in years but young in health.

There are two wise rules that will make your added years healthier. Always visit your physician at the first sign of any illness, and regularly take one of the geriatric vitamins that will supply the extra energy needed. For just a few cents per day you can get from us vitamins made by the dependable pharmaceutical firms who discovered and perfected them.

Freeze Berries Now—Make Jam and Jellies Later

Oregon State College—As the last of the Northwest native berries sweeten on the vine, this helpful suggestion is offered Oregon jam and jelly makers: freeze the berries whole or freeze the juice and make jam and jelly later.

Mrs. Ruth Klippstein, Oregon State college extension nutritionist, says home-makers who have been making jam and jelly all summer long may be too busy, short on storage space or just plain tired of making more jam and jelly now. The thing to do, she says, is to either freeze the whole berries for later use in jams or freeze the juice for jelly-making.

Measure berries just as recipes specify for jams, she says. Then freeze. Extract the juice and measure for favorite jelly recipes. Freeze like any other fruit before storing, label the fruit with amount and directions for later use.

Care should be used in selection of native fruits used in jam and jellymaking. For instance, blue elderberries make excellent jelly but red elderberries should not be used. It is believed that red elderberries have contributed to certain stomach upsets. If in doubt, Mrs. Klippstein advises homemakers to consult local county extension agents or the local health association.

County extension offices also have more detailed information on jam and jellymaking.
