(Too Late for Last Week)

Christmas Day came to a close with strong winds and rain after a temperature of 60 above during the day. Strong gusts of wind brought several trees down and limbs and branches were everywhere. A half an inch of rain fell in a short time. Half of an elm tree in the yard at the Frank Marlow farm blew on the porch and roof of the kitchen, but no serious damage was done. At the farm of Bob Coder a tree narrowly missed the house. The wind continued all day Thursday, but not so strong.

The Christmas program at the Community church was presented last Sunday night. Theme was "The Fear Nots of Christmas." The nursery class sang "The Merry Christmas Bells." The manger scene was presented by the beginners class, with Sandra Thorpe of the intermediate class singing, "Away In a Manger." The congregation sang, "Silent Night" next. The junior class presented "God's message to the world," which was hope, love, joy, peace, holiness and forgiveness. The intermediate class gave scripture verses depicting "Fear Not, There's a King," and "Fear Not, There's a Message." Martis Shattuck sang "Ave Maria." The high school gave the "Fear Nots" of sin, the future, death, failure and of people.

the biggest amount of money. They will be honored at a dance the evening the contest ends, which is January 25. The "Polio Rock N' Roll" is the final event of the contest and will feature last years King and Queen, doing the crowning, as well as some special guests. There are but two rules for getting money—you can't take it from the class treasury, or in any undesirable way. Participation points will be awarded to the classes, too. Money collected will be displayed in the halls, and the student body officers will do the final counting of the event.

Students are still awaiting annual pictures, along with individual orders. Since it is so near the end of the semester, school work has been stressed to the point that any individual is afraid to miss any school, whether sick or not.

Seniors in social problems will have Mr Huggett for 4 days, when he talks on taxes—tax forms, etc. Mr Joe Stewart, their regular teacher, will take over the biology class. Also, on the list of changes, is Mrs Brosman, who is substituting for Mr Roy Kirk, who has been in the hospital since the holidays. Mr Kirk is expected back next week. Term papers is the main issue in senior English classes at the moment. The frosh are well settled with the routines of Hepppner High, and have really got down to business lately, while writing their 2500 word papers in general science. Juniors are concentrating on the class play, which is to be given sometime in February. Sophomores seem to be busy in typing, trying to improve speed and accuracy, as this first semester draws to a close.

Placement test results have been received, and parents as well as students are urged to come in to talk with Mr Stewart about them.

Basketball seems to take everyone's Friday and Saturday nights. The games serve as a place to let off a little of that extra ego. Hepppner High's alma mater sounds real nice, and came as a surprise to most college students who were home for vacation. Our old fight song still has its place, though and it has been the custom for all Heppnerites to stand, at its ringing sound!

This point should be stressed more by all say Hepppner High students. At our next home game, which will be Friday night with Ione, lets see everyone on their feet staying for the alma mater. That team needs more support!!!

Night meetings have again started for the paper staff. All are working toward a trip to the Pacific Slope Conference, held in Seattle. To attend, one must have required enough points. Points are awarded according to work done, and students must rank in the top 8 to be able to go. No paper.....No convention.

Notes From Student Council

Tuesday morning, the student council of Hepppner High held their regular weekly meeting. Special points brought up included the following: March of Dimes contest, feeding the boys after games, the clothing drive, letterman ushering at ball games, discussion of grade school students behavior at games, and marking off the cheering section for the high school, junior high, and gradeschool. These points will be discussed further at a later date, and reported on again.
