Pancakes Are Fun Fare

On Shrove Tuesday, the day of feasting and fun before Lent starts, pancakes are traditionally served. You'll find these the lightest ever because beer goes into the batter as it did for centuries in England where they really know how to make pancakes! Serve tall glasses of cold beer as friends gather round the griddle to watch you prepare the pancakes and Quick Newburg Sauce.

Old English Pancakes
 1 egg
 1/2 cup bottled or canned beer or ale
 1/4 cup milk
 3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine

Pre-heat electric griddle as manufacturer directs. Beat egg; stir in beer, milk and melted butter. Sift together flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Gradually stir in beer-egg mixture, stirring only until ingredients are blended. Pour batter from pitcher or drop from large spoon onto heated griddle into 4-inch wide pancakes. Bake. Turn pancakes when edges start to dry. Keep warm and serve with Quick Newburg Sauce.

Quick Newburg Sauce
 1/2 cup milk
 1 can undiluted condensed cream of mushroom soup
 1 cup cooked or canned lobster
 2 tablespoons diced pimiento
 Toasted almonds

Gradually stir milk into soup in saucepan. Add lobster and pimiento. Heat to serving temperature. To serve, spoon sauce over pancakes; garnish with toasted almonds.

to attend were Mrs. Carl Thorpe and Beverly Sherman.

IN THE SADDLE With The Wranglers

By JOHN NEWMAN
 This week we go to press with a heavy heart knowing the sorrow and loss of the Charley Daly's. May courage and faith soon cast the weight from their hearts and the shadows that dull the beauty and warmth of the sun.

If this weather keeps up it will be time to start riding soon. The ground is perfect right now but there are a few gaps in the fence to be stopped up. There are two light poles to be set, one before a hole in the fence can be finished.

Sunday the 9th Howard, Bruce, Cornett and Herman with the aid of Ralph's post hole digger made quite a showing. The following Sunday Howard showed up just in time to help our neighbor clear a drift from under the bridge which was a very worthwhile enterprise. Threatening rain must have dampened the enthusiasm of all others. Cornett has most of the gates ready to hang. Anyone who can swing a hammer, build a fire or boil coffee is always welcome.

Last Sunday Howard and Cornett started framing the bucking chutes. If you bronc or cow riders don't like them, you will have a chance to get even—the calf chutes are still only a dream.

Moyer was down trying out the grounds. His little mare was trying out for the bronc class and three more jumps would have lost the blanket if not the rider. Next Tuesday, March 4 is meeting night. Come out and help us do what we are not doing.

Fire Death Rate High For children under 5 State Record Reveals

Fire risk to children under 5 years of age is almost three times that for other ages, reminds Charles Ross, Oregon State college forestry specialist. Ross heads the OSC extension service fire prevention program.

Sixteen children under 5 burned to death in Oregon homes in 1956, the latest year reported by the Oregon fire marshal department. Ross says newspapers are currently reporting the usual numbers of "shocking tragedies in which children die without having a chance."

Oregon fire records for the period 1912 to 1951 show the fire death rate is about 12 per 100,000 population for children under 5 years of age. National reports further point up the fire danger faced by small children.

Insurance records for 1954-55 reveal that fires accounted for one-fifth of all accidental deaths at ages 1 to 4 years. It places fire next to motor vehicle accidents as killer of small children. Motor vehicle accidents for the year under study, 1954-55, caused one-third of all accidental deaths in the same age group.

Each year in the United States, more than 1,100 pre-school children lose their lives in fires or as a result of burns from other causes. Leaving youngsters in the home without adequate supervision is an invitation to tragedy and probably weighs heavily in this high mortality rate, Ross says. Burns from hot liquids, steam, or other hot substances

QUIN COOKERETTES

The Quin Cookerettes met at the home of Linda Halvorsen February 19 at 3:30. Linda served refreshments before the meeting came to order.

Our meeting was called to order by the vice president, Marilyn Morgan. New business was the election of a new president, as our former president, Mildred Seehafer, had resigned from our club. Marilyn Morgan was elected to fill the vacancy and Linda Halvorsen was elected to fill the vice president.

No further business, our meeting was adjourned.

Each girl brought a menu for three meals. We discussed and corrected these menus to see how many of the seven basic foods we had.

We had one visitor at our meeting, Mrs. Lewis Halvorsen. Dianna Pettyjohn, reporter

HEPPNER FORESTERETTES

The Heppner Foresterettes had a 4-H meeting at the home of Mrs. Jack Van Winkle.

The meeting was called to order. We discussed the window project for 4-H week.

The meeting was adjourned and Patricia Van Winkle served refreshments. Patty Mahoney, reporter also account for many fatalities.

Inspection and elimination of home fire hazards is necessary to protect little ones who cannot protect themselves, reminds the specialist. He says this is especially important in cold weather when heating systems are in heaviest use. He also suggests home fire drills to train children.
