

The Council Opposes Paving North-South Road

By ECHO PALMATEER
The regular Ione city council Tuesday evening, July 9, the council went on record as opposing the prospective blacking job on the north Lexington grain elevator Boardman. Due to a large sum of money having been spent on this the council feels there are roads in the county that should be given preference to this as it is primarily serving a group of people. The council opposes the completion of the Creek as the next project. A resolution was sent to the city court.

The council meeting that was approved and ordered granting the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company franchise to operate in Ione approved and passed.

Big Kitchens Are Back

The big kitchen which doubles as a family living room is back in style with the food preparation center close by a spacious round-the-clock dining center, and provision for music and games.

In many of these kitchens a change in flooring defines the various areas. In others, such games as shuffle board and checkers are laid in the flooring or counter top space. In the room pictured, the flooring defines the end of the kitchen and the beginning of the recreation area. The chord organ, played by all members of the family, provides music for singing and dancing.
