

Dodgers Leading Little League

The Little League games played this past week were very exciting with each team playing to win the top position and the right to play the Giants, winner of the first half of play, for first place of the summer schedule.

Wednesday, July 23 the Indians trounced the Braves 14-6 in a well played game with the Indians getting their big runs in the second and fourth innings.

The following Thursday a very exciting come from behind win was made by the Dodgers over the Giants. Going into the bottom of the sixth inning the Giants were leading 8-3, when Dodgers got one run on a stolen base, then the bases were loaded and Doug Dubuque hit a grand slam homer to win the game 9-8.

On Monday the Dodgers squeezed by the Indians 12-10. The Indians rallied in the second inning with 10 runs to go ahead 10-6. The Dodgers came back in the third and fourth innings with three runs each to go ahead and win.

Tuesday the Giants ran over the Braves 13-4 behind fine pitching by Ken Smith and errorless ball by the Giants.

Wednesday the Giants played again, beating the Indians 14-4 with Sherrill McDonald pitching all the way.

The Dodgers and Braves tangled tonight (Thursday) to finish this week's play. Next week will wind up the summer's play with each team having two games left.

First National Bank Adopts New Name Starting Friday

The First National Bank of Portland, the oldest national bank on the Pacific Coast, will have the newest name of any bank west of the Rocky Mountains on Thursday when it officially becomes the First National Bank of Oregon.

A telegram from the comptroller of the currency in Washington, D C, making the change official, was received yesterday by the head office of state-wide branch banking institution.

Shareholders had earlier authorized the change at a special meeting held in Portland on June 27. Commenting on the change, C B Stephenson, bank president, said:

"With First National bank services available to Oregonians at 77 offices in 55 Oregon communities, our new name, First National Bank of Oregon has a much more appropriate description of our bank. As the bank continues to expand in the future, the name will become increasingly more appropriate."

Oregon's First National, the first national bank chartered west of the Rocky Mountains, has been in business in Portland since 1865. The bank opened its first five branches on April 1, 1933—the day branch banking legislation became effective in Oregon. By yearend 1933 the bank had 17 offices. The institution now has 77 offices open, one under construction to open soon in Raleigh Hills and one proposed for the Lloyd corporation shopping center on Portland's east side.

Customers have been asked to continue to use their present supplies of checks, which will be received and processed in the usual manner at all of the bank's offices, the president said. Depository slips, bank books and other supplies issued in the old bank name will continue to be used until new ones are issued, he added.

Extension Units Plan Year's Work

"Know Your Oregon" and "Use of Oregon Wheat Products" were two of the projects chosen by the program planners of the Extension Unit at their meeting held on Wednesday, July 23rd, at the Lexington Grange hall. The meeting was chaired by Miss Esther Kirmis, Morrow county extension agent, assisted by Miss Betty Sedgwick of the extension staff at Oregon State college, and Nels Anderson, Morrow county agent.

In view of the Oregon Centennial which is to be celebrated in 1959 and the National Home Demonstrations clubs convention to be held in Portland next year, program planners of the Morrow county extension units felt it wise for their members to become informed on Oregon's history—especially the history of Morrow county. Plans are being laid for each unit to secure background material of historical importance in their own community which will be compiled as a history of Morrow county.

"We grow it, we'd better learn to use it . . . that was the consensus of opinion when the planners chose the topic of "Use of Oregon Wheat Products." Tentative plans are to contact Miss Frances Barnick, demonstrator of the Oregon Wheat League, to present a bread and rolls demonstration to project leaders who in turn will give the lesson in their own clubs.

Other topics chosen which will complete the year's program include: "Color as the basis of all food," "clothing," home decorating," "outdoor barbecuing," "new fabrics and finishes," and "holiday fun" - a crafts lesson. Units will choose an additional two topics of special interest to their members.

A crafts workshop for all interested persons in the county will be scheduled later in the club year. Program planners in attendance include: Mrs Walter Ruggles, Lexington; Mrs Ed Baker,

(Continued from Page 1) of standing wheat was destroyed. Another 1000 acres of grass and rangeland near Ordinance in the north end of the county was burned Monday night, but this fire was controlled by the Ordinance fire department, it was stated.

The continued hot weather in all of the state has created the worst fire conditions in several years and both state and Forest Service officials urge extreme caution particularly in the woods.

MECHANICS OF EXHIBITING, JUDGING FLOWERS FOR SHOWING EXPLAINED

(This is the second in a series of articles on proper preparation of flowers for display at such events as flower shows, county fairs, etc. It is offered for the public interest and this article was written by Mrs Fredrick T Martin, a member of the Ione Garden Club, sponsors of the entire series.)

The exhibitor who knows and uses accepted expert practice in showing specimens (as in the disbudding of certain flowers, cutting and showing specimens at the proper stage of development or with the correct stem length) may reasonably expect to receive higher rating.

Disbudding is a horticultural practice followed with certain plants having a strong central stalk. As flower buds form, all but one or occasionally two are cut away close to the stalk, so that the strength of the plant goes into the remaining bud, which produces a larger, finer flower. This practice is used with large-flowered dahlias, chrysanthemums, roses and carnations.

In some cases old or damaged petals can be removed from the bloom. This is recommended with dahlias and roses.

No foliage except that on the stem of the specimen is used with flowers which bear leaves on the blooming stems as chrysanthemums and roses. The quality and condition of this foliage will be considered in judging. Any foliage under water should be removed as the gases formed from deterioration shorten the life of the bloom.

In all classes, evidence of the insect pests or disease, or of spray or dust damage or residue is judged as a fault.

Correct naming of varieties or of little-known species in horticultural exhibits is desirable and will win recognition by the judges. Such labeling also helps to educate the public who visit the show.

Fragrance is a desirable quality in some species. Generally the stem length should be long and in proportion to the size of the flower.

When displaying several flowers in a class, use those of similar color, size and form. Three orange marigolds will rate better than two orange and one yellow.

An explanation of some principal terms used in judging specimens is necessary.

Form is the shape characteristic to a blossom.

Substance is a firmness or fineness of texture. Good substance means the quality which the flower would have at its best.

Condition is the physical state of the flower or plant at the time of judging.

Next week standards for judging specific varieties of flowers will be published.
