WHAT'S DOING

D. A. Short, your Telephone Manager for Heppner

These days there's no telling where you'll find transistors, those mighty mites developed by phone people. They've been whirling through space inside U.S. satellites, helping to radio information back to earth. And, down here, they're helping to bring you good phone service. The special transistor held by the phone man above, for instance, helps speed out-of-town calls. For it automatically picks the fastest voice paths to the town you're calling. On top of that, it enables more and more folks to dial their own long distance calls. Transistors are among a whole host of tiny, space-saving parts we use to bring better service to you.

Now that September's here, a lot of young people will be going away to school. With so much going on those first weeks, they won't always have much time to write. So why not tell them to call home collect certain evenings on Sundays. That way you'll keep up on all the news. Evening and Sunday station-to-station rates are extra low, too. Pacific Telephone
