"Chats With Your Home Agent"

By ESTHER KIRMIS
I'm feeling very conspicuous these days — I'm driving a new state extension car — a Ford station wagon, no less! It's the policy of our county extension office to keep a state car for four years and then trade it in on a new one. I was fortunate to come into the county just in time for this trade.

I've been driving for a good number of years, but I must admit that like most women (and some men) I know little of what makes the engine under the hood tick. So this week's chat is directed to women drivers.

Ladies, have you ever been mortified to find your favorite garage man grinning as you tried to explain exactly what happened when your car "just went PFFTT!" and wouldn't start again?

Or have you been furious with your husband for snapping, "How do you expect to drive the thing when you don't even know what makes it go!"

Perhaps we women deserve the WOMAN-Driver jokes and scorn we resent so bitterly. If we're honest, we'll have to admit that many of us do drive a car day after day, mile after mile, in blissful ignorance of what makes it tick. It could be a steam-driven camel, for all we know.

Actually, this innocence can lead to serious trouble. If a car isn't kept in good repair, it's not safe to drive. And a car that isn't properly cared for is expensive to maintain . . . a constant drain on the family pocketbook. It can cost from $500 to $1000 to replace an engine that burned out because you forgot to have the oil changed. Thousands of families waste enough gasoline in a year through poor maintenance of their cars to buy $200 worth of groceries.

I'm not qualified to give you a course in auto mechanics, but the other day a little booklet called, "Car Talk in a Woman's Language" came to my desk. It's put out by the Champion Spark Plug Company of Toledo, Ohio. It's a wonderful little booklet that gives you the inside story about your car and its engine. It's written by women expressly for women. For instance, it describes the carburetor as the place where the mixing of gas and air is done . . . something

Mothers Club Hears Programs Plans For This Coming Year

A forecast of the years program highlighted the meeting of the Mothers Club, Monday, October 6, at the home of Mrs Robert Jones.

Mrs Nels Anderson, program chairman, listed speakers and special interest programs and stated that the progressive dinner and spring tea will be held again.

Rules were discussed in relation to the introduction of new members emphasizing newcomers of the community being welcomed as guests at the meetings.

Mrs Wallace Wolff was elected vice president to replace Mrs Norman Peters, who has moved away.

Mrs Robert Abrams and Mrs Nels Anderson will serve for the county patient hospitality service in October.

Refreshments were served by Mrs Jones and Mrs Roice Fullerton, after which Halloween games were played. Mrs Fullerton received the door prize.

November hostesses will be Mrs Rod Murray and Mrs Harold Laird.

like a flit gun. Or when it talks about the cylinders it describes them as shaped something like old-fashioned butter churns. There are several pages on "What it is and what it does," and "Know Your (Engine) Symptoms" etc. It's all cleverly illustrated in cartoon fashion.

Isn't it time we women drivers took a moment to learn more about our family cars, and just what makes them go? For the sake of our family's safety. . . for our own ego's sake . . . and for the sake of our budgets. It's important for us to know.

Phone us or write for your copy of "Car Talk — in a Woman's Language".
