Shown in a picturesque Brussels World's Fair setting is a 1959 Ford Sunliner convertible. Ford offers two convertibles in 1959: the soft-top Sunliner and the retractable hardtop Skyliner. Ford's tasteful styling theme in 1959 is a result of consumer demand for more elegance and dignity, as opposed to gaudiness or extremism. In the background is the Atomium, prominent landmark at the Brussels World's Fair.

A grade school band has been organized with about 23 students signed up for this. Miss Galyen is the teacher, and also under Miss Galyen's instruction a "Pep" band which they hope will be ready by basketball time. Date To Remember:

WHAT'S DOING

D. A. Short, your Telephone Manager for Heppner

When you think about national defense, you may not think of telephones right away. Fact is, though, you'll find phone lines at the heart of our defense setup. For instance, long-range bomber bases of the Strategic Air Command depend on phone lines for trigger-fast communication; and in our test centers, like the one shown above, we keep a never-ending watch on these vital communications pathways. Phone lines also keep the Air Defense Command in split-second touch with missile launching sites. Telephone men from the Pacific West have also helped build other defense communications systems. We're happy that our people can help—in these and many more ways—to keep the U.S. strong.

The Fall of the year always brings increased activities into the community. School has started and we are all aware of the number of youngsters on our streets and those yellow school busses that cruise the surrounding area bringing our youngsters to school. The Fall of the year also means increased social activities in our community and this month Halloween parties are being arranged everywhere. The hunters in the family are also busy making arrangements for those deer hunting trips to the mountains or where to go for the elusive pheasant. Have you ever thought how important your telephone has been in making these arrangements? Many of our young people are away at school and have you ever thought how nice it would be to call them and let them know what's going on back home. Shown below are the night and Sunday station rates for three minutes to nearby colleges:
