

32 COUNTY 4-H'ers CHOSEN FOR SUMMER SCHOOL SCHOLARSHIPS

Thirty-two 4-H members were chosen by committees of 4-H leaders and parents as delegates to attend 4-H summer school at Oregon State College, June 20-27, according to Miss Esther Kirmis, Morrow county extension agent.

4-H summer school will give the county's 4-H youth a chance to go to college for a week along with 2000 other 4-H members in Oregon.

A quota of 32 delegates was given to Morrow county. This was divided, according to membership, into a quota of ten for Boardman and Irrigon clubs and 22 for clubs in the South Morrow area.

To qualify as a delegate for this annual event 4-H boys and girls must be at least 13 years of age on January 1, 1959; must have successfully completed two years of 4-H work, and must have completed all projects enrolled in the past year.

Letters were sent from the county agent's office on April 20 notifying the fortunate boys and girls that they were chosen to attend. Several alternates were selected in case of drop-outs from the first 32 chosen.

A 4-H scholarship committee is in the process of gathering $25.00 scholarships from business places and organizations in the county to help defray the cost of room and board during the week's stay at Corvallis.

Each 4-H member chosen must provide $10.00 for their own bus fare. Arrangements are being made for buses to take the delegation to the Oregon State College campus. This fee must be in the county agent's office by May 15 to insure a full quota of students.

Class registration cards have also been sent to the delegates so they might select classes that will interest them. Leadership classes are offered to members over 15 years of age.

Shaw Creek Grade Getting Face Lifting

NEW ROAD UP SHAW CREEK GRADE, on upper Willow creek doesn't look much like the old one since Heppner Pine Mills crews started rebuilding the 3.7 miles of the narrow winding "cow trail" which used to carry the traffic into the mountains. This photo shows a section of the nearly completed road which will be rockd during the summer.

NEARLY 100 FEET WIDE in places, this section is five to six times the width of the old Shaw Creek road. The Heppner Pine woods crew has been rebuilding the road under terms of the Black Mountain sale of timber by the Forest Service. Here a grader is putting on some of the finishing touches.

BIG DIG—Two of Heppner Pine's Cats are moving a mountain of dirt into a fill to take some of the many kinks out of the road. Considerable work remains to be done on the construction project, but trucking was started Monday over the route which is still a little rough in places for regular passenger cars. It is expected that it will be fall before the entire project is completed. The mill purchased about 16,000,000 feet of timber in this area which it is now logging. (GT Photos)

WHEAT GROWERS

Concern was shown by the national president in the quality of wheat being shipped into foreign markets. He warned that white wheats would need to be kept separate from western whites if foreign buyers were to get what they demanded and the Pacific Northwest continued to keep their market. Commenting on the conservation reserve program he explained that there were many problems in administering such a program which applied to all farms of the country. While the Oregon Wheat Growers League had asked for an unrestricted limit on the amount that farms might earn under the program in an attempt to take more land out of production, Mr Root explained that Congress was receiving many complaints on whole farms being taken out of production in the mid-west which disrupted the life and economy of entire communities. Sighted as an example was a group of farmers in the veterans project in a mid-west state where REA was forced to disrupt their program by unhooking 185 farms where farmers had moved away.

Conservationist Named

Raymond Lundell, Gooseberry community farmer, was presented as the County Conservation Man of the Year winner by Walter Jacobs, chairman of this committee. Mr Lundell was honored with a presentation of a plaque presented by Jack Wightman, manager of the Empire Machinery who commented on their interest in the conservation of soil and water in the Columbia Basin.

Discussing a public relations program for farm people it was pointed out that the farmer could do most in such a program. A nationwide program of public relations requires hundreds of thousands of dollars which is not available explained Floyd Root. Jack Wightman commented on the need for starting a public relations program at home pointing out that he would conservatively estimate that not one out of 20 business men in the city of Pendleton know of the farmers situation, their return for investment invested. He suggested that every farmer be an ambassador on public relations and that instead of talking to each other about their problems that they make this known to others not closely associated with their business.

The association went on record favoring, with only one dissenting vote, the addition of a assistant agricultural agent.

SUIT OVER

Continued from Page 1 if the board would consider a compromise increase of about $500 per teacher, which Robert Penland, Gazette-Times publisher, said he felt would make the budget more acceptable to the voters. No action was taken on this request.

In answer to a question about what the county school tax millage would be next year under the proposed budget, Van Houte said it would be about 46 mills, compared with 41.4 for the present year.

The special $130,000 building fund levy, which is not included in the overall budget also came in for some discussion during the evening.

The budget is again published elsewhere in today's paper and the vote on it will be held on Monday, May 18.

Phone Company Asks End to Excise Tax

The 10 per cent Federal excise tax on telephone service is costing telephone users in Heppner, Ione and Lexington an estimated $886.08 a month, D A Short, Pacific Telephone manager, said today.

"Last year the company took in about $5,650,000 from telephone customers in Oregon and turned this money over to the government in its role as tax collector," Short said.

Pacific Telephone, other Bell System companies and independent telephone companies are urging repeal of the telephone tax by Congress. A joint resolution passed by the Oregon Legislature recently also asked this action.
