VIOLET KLOBAS

Ex IFYE Student Speaks at Meeting

Violet Klobas Shepard, former IFYE (International Farm Youth Exchange) student to Austria, spoke before some 25 women on Monday, May 25, at the home of Mrs Jasper Myers, Pine City. The occasion was the annual entertainment of alumni county committee members of the extension units of Morrow county, according to Esther Kirmls, Morrow county extension agent.

Violet, who at present is the Wheeler county extension agent, spent 5 1/2 months with farm families in Austria in 1957. She went as one of four Oregon delegates under the IFYE program.

At the gathering Monday, Violet wore a native Austrian costume & showed slides and told of her experiences with the Austrian people. She stayed with four families while in Austria—with nine children in her last host family.

Learning the language and having to tell her families goodbye were the greatest difficulties she encountered during her stay.

One of the highlights of Violet's travels was a side trip to Yugoslavia where she visited her grandfather whom her father had not seen for 43 years.

A graduate of Oregon State College, Violet taught home economics at Westfir high school in 1956 and upon her return from Austria was appointed Wheeler county agent.

Legion to Buy Invalid Aid

The Heppner post of the American Legion Monday approved the purchase of a walker with funds it received from its recent magazine subscription drive. The piece of medical-aid equipment will be made available to the public within a short time.

A chili feed is planned following the next meeting, June 1.

Canning, Freezing Demonstration Set

How do I keep my canned fruit from floating? What causes fruit to discolor? Should I use dry or liquid pack when I freeze fruits and vegetables? . . .

All of these questions and many more will be answered by Mrs Vivian Freeman, White Satin Sugar demonstrator, when she appears at the Heppner fair pavilion on Tuesday, June 2, 1:30 p m, for a canning and freezing demonstration, according to Miss Esther Kirmls, Morrow county extension agent.

"We are fortunate indeed," states Miss Kirmls, "in having a visit from this professional demonstrator. For many years, Mrs Freeman demonstrated for the Kerr glass company. During World War II she went all over Oregon, Washington, and Idaho giving demonstrations on canning and preserving food."

Both hot and cold pack method of canning, pressure cooker canning, and freezing of fruits—both dry sugar and syrup—will be demonstrated on Tuesday.

Women are encouraged to bring a jar of their own canning to the meeting, whether good or bad, to aid the discussion of the day.

All those who are interested are urged to attend this meeting and support this very important program.

Extra Traffic Enforcement Due Over Holidays

Governor Mark Hatfield Wednesday ordered National Guard helicopters and unmarked vehicles into Memorial Day weekend action as law enforcement measures.

Oregon's traffic fatalities are up some 31 over the same period last year, the Governor noted in expressing his concern for the double holiday weekend. "With three double holidays coming up and the Centennial attracting thousands of additional vehicles to our highways, it is imperative we take every precaution we can to prevent accidents," Governor Hatfield declared.

The Helicopters will work with the Oregon State Police, the Governor said, after a meeting with superintendent H G Maison, motor vehicle director Vern L Hill and acting adjutant general Robert Irving. They will be used to locate congested areas, to set officers down at the scene of an accident, and to provide radio contact in event speeders or violators are spotted from the air.

Location of the helicopters will not be announced, the Governor's office said. Other National Guard aircraft may also be assigned to weekend duty, it was indicated.

"Oregon has been writing a tragic accident record in blood during the first five months of 1959," the Governor said. "The increase over last year is alarming. I urge all citizens to drive carefully during our Centennial summer."

The Governor said he has asked the highway commission to review its policies on designated speed signs on freeways and by-passes. He also called for a review of highway location in which there are vision-obstructing dips on straight stretches to determine if more extensive use of double striping is feasible.

Iowa Chick Is World Champion

A revolutionary new light weight leghorn, introduced on the market less than a year ago, was named Grand Champion at the World Poultry Congress in Mexico City, Mexico. She is the Maxi-Lay Queen, specially developed to lay more eggs on less feed.

The new champion, raised on the Pillsbury feed division research farm at Clinton, Iowa, was also judged best of all laying strain breeds. She'll wear both crowns until the World Poultry Congress convenes again in Australia in 1962.

The compact "Queen" weighs only four pounds, compared with about 5 1/2 pounds for most U.S. layers. The pounds are important to poultrymen. A one pound weight difference means a saving of about nine pounds of feed per bird per year. Despite their pint size, the Maxi-Lay Queen strain has set astounding production records. They lay a hen housed average of 245 eggs per year, 96 per cent grade A or better. They are bred to start laying at around 5 1/2 months and average 75 per cent of production in the first four months of lay.

Scientifically developed, the Maxi-Lay Queen is the product of over 35 years of breeding, plus five years of cross breeding and testing to bring it to championship perfection.
