Zoning of North County Urged by Army Engineers

The U S Corps of Engineers Tuesday recommended that the shore area in Morrow county along the backwater pool of the John Day dam be zoned as an aid to future development of the area.

The suggestion was made at a tour of the area Tuesday by representatives of the Morrow county port district, the county court, Oregon state water resources board, U S Fish and Wildlife service, Corps of Engineers and local residents.

It was pointed out that pool fluctuations along the upper end of the pool will make industrial sites less desirable than at the lower end, but that wind and wave action was also a major hindrance to loading and unloading, and this is more noticeable at the lower end of the pool.

The group followed the water line of the pool throughout the width of Morrow county during the inspection tour. In irrigation the only land that would be effected is that below the bank and an old graveyard will have to be moved. Further west the flood waters will cover many acres including parts of highway 730. Many of the bays and inlets along the river were examined but to just what use these may be put has not been determined. Plans do call for a small harbor at Boardman and at Willow creek (Heppner Junction) a sheltered harbor at least 1 1/2 miles long will be developed into an excellent small boat basin.

The specialists on the tour urged interested persons to inform the Corps of Engineers of their wishes for development of special areas along the river; and pointed to the need for speed in this matter to avoid confusion and extra expense. Construction in Morrow county is planned for 1963.

The relocation of the City of Boardman was discussed and a representative of the Engineers said that Cornell, Howland, Hayes and Merryfield, consult-
