How Should

You Choose An

INSURANCE AGENT?

With caution! Over the years you will see a lot of the person from whom you buy protection and you want to be right the first time.

Look for experience and dependability in your agent. Be sure he is willing to work hard for your business, burn up some shoe leather and not dodge a night call.

You'll be happier if the man you choose is a local independent agent who handles all lines, not just a few of the more popular ones. We can fill the bill. Call us.

This newspaper has been called many things - by many people. Sometimes good - sometimes not so good.

We've been called a rag—a sheet—a dad-blasted thing—a ma-which. At the same time in a kinder vein, we've been called a good paper—a fine paper—occasionally even an outstanding newspaper.

But we have always liked it best when we've heard one of our readers call us: "MY Newspaper."

Now — National Newspaper Week comes along and our theme says that "Your Newspaper—(is) Freedom's Textbook."

We've never been called a text book before but after studying this idea—we like it. A lot of truth in that simple statement.

Mr. Webster's dictionary says a textbook is: "A presentation of the principles of the subject." When you think about it, that's just what a newspaper does—particularly in this tricky but important freedom business.

Freedom is pretty hard to define, so we're not going to try. But I suspect that you and I think of the same things when we think of freedom. We think of the right to express both sides of a question—the right to know what our government does with our money—the right to worship as our own hearts dictate—the right to be an individual.

Stories about and for these rights make up a big part of your newspaper. Taken on a broad basis, the principles of freedom are the backbone of the everyday stories about you, your neighbors and your community.

Yes—your newspaper is Freedom's Textbook.

WHAT'S DOING

This is a "switchboard on wheels"—a complete telephone central office built right into a big truck trailer. Its job is to help phone people keep vital calls going through during emergencies. You see, we can send these switchboards on wheels wherever they're needed and hook them up to hundreds of phone lines in a matter of hours. Then operators work right from these trailers, keeping important calls going—fire, police, hospital, civil defense, and such. It's one way we work to keep phone service ready when it's needed most.

Stand-by generators are something else we use to meet emergencies. They can feed reserve power into the batteries that supply electricity for your phone calls. It's mighty seldom we'd ever need them but, like the switchboard on wheels, they're ready—just in case.
