

"OVER THE TEE CUP"

By JACKIE LABHART

This being the season of Halloween the tee cup this week will be "brewed" under "bewitching" conditions, and should I suppose be written by a "ghost writer"; but I shall endeavor to keep you in "suspense" by relating the "ghoulish" golfing gossip and "hair-raising" happenings of this past week.

Fifteen "phantom" type female golfers floundered around the fairways at our weekly ladies day competition Tuesday, but a few of the lady link lovers did shoot a pretty good game. The fearless fifteen were Sue Valentine, Dee Gribble, Sue Jones, Inez Meador, Hazel Mahoney, Faye Ruhl, Coramae Ferguson, Marguerite Chapin, Hester Creswick, Gene Case, Marie McQuarrie, Vi Lanham, Cork Norene and myself. New golf balls were awarded to Cork for having the lowest net score (48-21-27) and Hester for having the least number of strokes (3) on the hidden hole, which was no 7. Other good games were shot by Dee with a 42-9-33, Vi with a 42-8-34, and I had a 36-8-28.

GHASTLY GOOFS: the No 4 hole seemed to be "haunting" Sue Valentine, for her drive just made it down over the bluff, her second shot went into the fence, then her third shot seemed to be flying like a "witches broomstick" right for the green when it hit the top of a tree and bounced back behind her about 20 feet (this is very unusual for Sue because she is one of our better golfers) . . . I guess Gene was trying to get into the "spirit" of the season on the No 5 hole for she spent quite a bit of time in the swamp looking for her golf balls which seemed to disappear into nowhere . . . and little invisible "goblins" seemed to be deliberately deflecting Vi's putts on the No 3 green . . . I missed getting an eagle on the long hole by just inches because I was "scared stiff" and too tense to stroke my putt firmly . . . Inez and No 8 just couldn't seem to negotiate.

Sunday was a glorious day for golf and among the numerous pilgrims on the course were Kay and Creston Robinson, Helen and Ed Schaffitz, Coramae and Raymond Ferguson, Oscar Peterson, Reverend Rydgren, Gerald Peterson, Suzanne and Bob Jepsen, Rosetta and Ted Palmateer, Bobbie and Jim Driscoll, Bill Collins, Vi and Conley Lanham, Frank Anderson and Father Spencer.

I think our apple tree by the No 2 green holds the same "fatal fascination" as another well known apple tree, for those who try to pluck its fruit seem to end up in the "applesauce". Sunday, Jim Driscoll, after having a rather rough nine holes, decided he needed a little nourishment before starting the second nine, so with grim determination he started across the bridge in search of the "forbidden fruit" and in the process the wheel of his golf cart snagged on one of the posts and into the murky muddy creek descended all of his golf clubs. (Needless to say, Jim at this point was probably wondering what "black cat" had crossed his path. But with the help of his fellow "ghoulers" he managed to fish out all his clubs.) Then on ladies day Cork and I were sitting on the No 2 tee waiting for the foursome ahead to hole out, when much to our amazement we saw Gene Case throwing one of her irons repeatedly at the aforementioned apple tree; it seems as tho' she was trying to knock down one
