VETERANS MEMORIALS
 It is possible now to have memorial markers furnished at government expense in either private or national cemeteries to honor the memory of members of the Armed Forces missing in action or who died or were killed while so serving, and whose remains have not been identified, have been buried at sea, or have been determined to be non-recoverable.

Legislation providing this service was approved August 14, 1958, but funds were not appropriated for implementing the act until this year.

STATE BANS VACCINES
 Two livestock vaccines were outlawed this week by the state Department of Agriculture on grounds they would spread diseases of swine. The vaccines are for virulent hog cholera virus, and erysipelas rhusiopathiae. Both are live cultures that could spread the disease they are supposed to cure.

LIQUOR STORES TO CLOSE
 Those who need brandy for holiday puddings and etc. are reminded that Oregon liquor stores will close at 6 p. m. Christmas eve and New Year's eve, says Liquor Commissioner, High Kirkpatrick.
 The early closing policy was established two years ago at the request of many community leaders throughout the state.

State Farm Land Values Continue Steady Up Trend

Oregon farm land values went up 2 percent from March to July of this year and now stand 5 percent higher than a year ago, reports Mrs Elvira Horrell, extension agricultural economist at Oregon State College.

Nationally, farm land values rose one percent during the same period and now are up 6 percent over a year earlier, Mrs Horrell found as she studied reports from the U S department of agriculture.

Price tags on farm lands have been showing an almost steady rise since 1942, Mrs Horrell continued. On the national scene, this upward trend has wavered only twice in this 17-year period.

From 1942 to 1951, farm income went up faster than farm land values. As a result, in 1948, land was relatively low in relation to income from farm lands. Then came the Korean war, and land values started to climb again.

The year 1952 also marked a turning point. Both farm income and farm land values went down. But while farm income continued down through 1957, land values turned upward again in 1954. By early 1955, previous farm land values had been passed and each year since has set a new high, she reported.

For a while, farm land remained in scarce supply. However, observers now feel the gap between incomes from farm land and farm land values has been more than closed, Mrs Horrell reports. From here on out, the observers think the trend in value of farm land will again be closely linked to expected income from that land.

An exception, she pointed out, can be found in farm land bought for urban or industrial development. And, many people still look on land as a security against changes in purchasing power of their savings.
