To recommend that you tune in the television program "Woman" on March 1 from 3:00 to 4:00 over CBS (Channel 8, Portland) as it deals with "The Lonely Years," a study of the problems of aging. This program is the fifth program in the "Woman Series" of daytime specials and will be hosted by Miss Helen Hayes, a well known actress.

Filed in Portland, "The Lonely Years" is a story of a 62 year old woman who has just come to the realization that she is growing old. It will examine the physical problems she faces; housing compatible with her needs, decrease in income, the impending change in her way of life because she cannot do the things she used to do. It will pose her basic psychological question: will her old age be ham high school. "The Troubled draw and vegetate or continue to live a full life?"

The basic premise of the program is that, given fair health and a moderate income, it is up to the individual whether or not she ages gracefully, whether or not her old age is a time of happiness and dignity.

Mrs Janet Baumhover, the wife of a retired former city employee, with two married daughters and four grandchildren, who works part time for the Multnomah county labor council, is the woman whose handling of these problems is examined on "Woman". Mrs Baumhover goes with the "Woman" cameras to visit the housing home, the Patton home, the Colonial Manor Sanitarium, the Carlton Hotel home for the aged and Willamette View Manor.

The "Woman" program chose Portland for a consideration of the problems of aging because there are more older people per capita in its downtown area than in any city of comparable size.

Dr Warren Stanley Welborn, clinical instructor in medicine at the University of Oregon Medical School, appears on the program in cooperation with the Multnomah County Medical Society to describe some of the medical aspects of aging.

Home Economics Program for 1961 To Be Planned

Program planners from the eight Morrow county extension units and representatives of other women's organizations in the county met Friday, February 19, at the Pine City school to start discussion on the home economics program in the county for 1961.

"Program planning is a never-ending process," states Esther Kirmis, Morrow county extension agent. "It is the most intangible, yet the most challenging activity of the extension service. Through this process comes a year's guide for unit meetings, public demonstrations, news stories, home visits, and joint projects for the extension staff. It is an opportunity to develop leadership and to help leaders as well as unit members, to analyze the needs and interests of their homes and communities."

On hand to lead the discussion at the first program planning meeting was N C Anderson and Esther Kirmis, County extension agents; and Muriel Seales, state extension agent of Corvallis.

They informed the women of the trends and research done by the extension service that may affect their choices of interests and activities. New areas of study open to the women this year are in the fields of family relations, family finance, and home management and equipment. Clothing, food and nutrition, and recreation studies are also available.

A second program planning meeting will be held on March 18. This will give the ladies a chance to discuss the ideas with their individual clubs and bring back reactions.

Program planners invited to attend include: Boardman unit—Mrs Arnold Hoffman, Mrs Russell Miller and Mrs Richard Waymire. Heppner unit—Mrs Douglas Drake, Mrs Howard Pettyjohn, Mrs Riley Munkers, Mrs Gene Ferguson and Mrs Paul Warren. Lone unit—Mrs Howard Crowell, Mrs Art Warren, Mrs Ed Baker and Mrs Bryce Keene. Irrigon unit—Mrs Larry Schaad, Mrs Rose Titus, and Mrs Warren McCoy. Lena unit—Mrs Ebb Hughes, Mrs George Currin, Mrs Allen Hughes and Mrs Randall Martin. Pine City unit—Mrs Weldon Witherrite, Mrs Willard French, and Mrs Leo Ashbeck. Rhea Creek unit—Mrs Kenneth Batty, Mrs John Graves, and Mrs John Bergstrom. Lexington unit—Mrs Walter Ruggles.

Invitations were also extended to other women's organizations
