This little farmer will inherit 49 empty tummies!

Grandpa fed 10 people. Dad produces for 25. But our skyrocketing population will force baby Bill to provide 53,655 meals yearly for 49 people. And he'll do it with the help of modern science, farmer know-how, and push-button electrical power.

Today, nearly 1,000 non-profit Rural Electric Systems—owned and operated by local people and financed by REA loans—are bringing better health and a touch of city living to people in rural areas. These same Rural Electric Systems are building lines to help Bill and other future farmers feed 175 million more people by 1995. And they have plans to install bigger transformers, and string heavier lines to fill future rural power needs which are now doubling every five to seven years.

Rural electrification is food insurance for all. Its cost, however, is borne by the people who use it. Already Rural Electric Systems have paid more than $1 billion in principal and interest on their $3 1/2 billion REA loans . . . added proof these locally-owned systems are one of the best investments our Nation ever made.
