Over 500 homemakers voted to improve traffic safety in Oregon at the state council meeting of Oregon home economics extension units at their annual conference in Corvallis on May 3-5. The state council, representing 656 units and 20,000 members in Oregon, had as its theme, "Keys to Better Living."

Mrs William Bergstrom, lone; Mrs E C Daniels, Boardman; Mrs Rose Titus and Mrs F H Johnson, Irrigon; and myself registered from Morrow county. Twenty-seven counties were represented.

The conference began on the evening of May 3 with an International dinner at the First Methodist church. Mrs Edna Duncan, Carlton, Oregon, Oregon's delegate to the Associated Country Women of the World's triennial in Edinburgh, Scotland in 1959, was the chief speaker.

The opening business session, with state council president, Mrs Armas Jakuu of Hood River, presiding, began on Wednesday morning.

Highlights of Wednesday's conference was a talk on "Seven keys to quality in selecting and care of fabrics" by Dr Dorothy Siegert Lyle. Dr Lyle is the director of consumer relations of the National Institute of Drycleaners, Silver Spring, Maryland. She is also the president elect of the American Home Economics Association. She spoke on the work they do to help drycleaners turn out a better product. The modern synthetic fibers do not always react to dry cleaning processes the way one hopes they will. An interesting exhibit presented by Dr Lyle was a paper dress-fore-runner of what we might soon be wearing!

The Pinochle club met at the home of Mrs Fred Mankin last Friday afternoon.

High score for the afternoon was held by Mrs Earl Evans. The pinochle prize was won by Mrs Mankin and Mrs H C Happold.

Guests were Mrs Walter Becket, Mrs Robert Lowe, Mrs LaTrace, Mrs Max Harris, Mrs Evans, Mrs A S Watkins and Mrs Happold.

The afternoon was spent at district get-togethers and state council project meetings. Morrow, Grant, Gilliam and Umatilla counties met with Mrs Ronald Leinbach, district director. We planned a joint meeting for all county committee members of the four counties for October 3 at Heppner. This will give us a chance to become better acquainted with our extension neighbors.

That evening was the council banquet in the Memorial ballroom on the Oregon State College campus. Mrs Robert Frasier, OSC family life specialist spoke on "Keys to Better Living."

I was quite pleased with the Morrow county delegation that evening when they presented me with a corsage for the banquet for being such a good "guide" at the conference.

The Thursday morning session saw the election of a new council president, Mrs Athalie Lage, Hood River. Mrs Jakuu, former president, has served her three years.

Mrs Ruth Klippstein, OSC food and nutrition specialist, moderated a symposium on "Education—the answer to food fadism". With her on the panel was Dr H W Schultz and Dr Betty Hawthorne of OSC resident staff, and Miss Pat Erpel-ding of the Oregon Dairy Council.

They brought out the fact that food fadisms prosper on the fears of the public. By quoting half-truths and omitting specific references these people who promote quick diets, blood builders, and vitamin builders are able to gross several million dollars from the gullible public.

"OVER THE TEE CUP"

By JACKIE LABHART

With apologies to Joyce Kilmer I have written a somewhat appropriate ode to the No 4 hole. . . . I know that I shall never seek. A water hazard like Willow creek. A creek that stands right in between, My golf ball and the putting green. Such shots are made by me and the meek, but why oh why right in the creek?

Those playing in the men's Sunday morning competition were Raymond Ferguson, Harlan McCurdy Jr, Ambrose Chaplin, Francis Doherty, Conley Latham, Bud Collins, Pete Cannon, LaVerne Van Marter, Clint McQuarrie, Ed Bennett, Harry O'Donnell, Jim Driscoll, Bill Collins and Bob Frink. New golf balls were awarded to Ambrose for shooting low net score, Bud Collins who had low gross and Ed Bennett had the least number of putts.

No golfer could have asked for a more perfect day than we had Tuesday for our ladies day competition. The "sun soaking sallyes" were Roberta Dougherty, Cork Norene, Ruth Van Winkle, Coramae Ferguson, Donna McCurdy, Kay Robinson, Dee Gribble, Jayne Frink Marie McQuarrie, Hazel Mahoney, Hester Creswick, Gene Case, Faye Ruhl, Vivian Hayes and myself. Coramae had low net score 47-18-29, Jayne and Hester both parred the hidden hole which was No 4 and Roberta and Faye tied for lional Home Demonstration Council meeting to be held in Madison, Wisconsin, August 28 to September 1. (This is the same council that met in Portland last October). Over 100 women came from Wisconsin to Portland last fall—we hope Oregon can send as many delegates.

State officers are quoting round trip prices from $75.00 to $130.00. It could be a nice vacation trip for any homemaker.

having the most 6's on their score cards.

LADIES DAY LAMENTS: Donna having difficulty on No 2; for she drove off and her ball hit an "obstacle" several yards in front and to the right of the tee and then the ball politely came back to rest on the tee off mat. . . . Vivian remarking "I'm just not talking" (it's odd how mad a novice can get at himself, because it just doesn't seem possible that you could miss hitting that little white ball resting on top of that little wooden peg. . . . but you sure can and quite easily) . . . everyone having putting troubles with the fast greens. . . . Hazel getting a "dilly" of a sunburn.

Don't forget this Sunday is the day we go to Kinzua and at this writing we have about 12 couples who are going so we should have a wonderful time. Breakfast will be served between 9 and 11.

Also remember that next Sunday, May 22 we have been invised to John Day for a day of golf and lunch will be served around noon.
