

Uniform Traffic Ticket Now in Use By City and County

A new uniform traffic ticket was put into use in Heppner starting July 1, Heppner chief of police, Dean Gilman stated this week. The new ticket, developed by the Oregon traffic court rules committee and approved by the supreme court, is a quadruplicate form, and it is now being used by all law enforcement agencies in the state.

Drivers charged with violating a traffic law will receive one portion of the ticket and the other three will be kept by official agencies processing traffic violations—the court, police department and the department of motor vehicles.

A law approving use of the uniform ticket in Oregon was passed by the 1959 legislature. Also taking effect at the same time will be a minimum ball schedule on a statewide basis.

The schedule includes the following balls: pedestrian violations $5, equipment defects, $10; registration and licensing violations $5; passing violations $20; and speed contests $100.

Bail for violating the state's speed law will depend upon how many miles over the fixed or designated speed the violator was traveling. For 1-10 miles in violation, the bail will be $10; 11-20 miles over $25; 21-30 miles over $50; over 30 miles per hour $100.

Major traffic offenses will call for larger amounts of bail. The amount of bail for each violation will appear in the lower right hand corner of each summons issued, it was stated.

Farm Markets Firm This Year; OSC Reviews Prospects

The economic foundation for farm markets appears firm this year in spite of a few cracks here and there, reports Marion D Thomas, extension agricultural economist at Oregon State College.

Economic conditions in the nation rest of this year aren't expected to exert the upward pull on farm prices and costs that comes with rapidly rising employment and incomes. But, neither are conditions likely to produce the downward push that comes when employment and incomes level off or drop, Thomas believes.

Instead, an in-between period of over-all stability appears to be growing out of a blend of mixed trends, the economist said, with Oregon's and the nation's economy likely to be operating on a high but uneven plateau during the rest of 1960.

Unfortunately for farmers, this generally favorable economic situation won't eliminate discouraging prices for products that are in superabundant supply, Thomas said. However, the general economic condition does promise higher prices and higher incomes than last year for most commodities that are in smaller national supply.

The general outlook also implies fairly good chances for little or no over-all increases in prices of goods and services used by farmers. Instead, opportunities for some better-than-usual buys may develop.

Opportunities for off-farm jobs to help farmers bolster their on-farm incomes will also remain good most of this year, Thomas notes.

Reasons for Thomas' conclusions, and the outlook for market conditions of some of Oregon's main farm commodities, are given in the current issue of the Oregon Farm and Market Outlook circular published by the OSC extension service. Free copies are available at county extension offices, or from the OSC bulletin clerk, Corvallis.

Oregon Farmland Values Increase; OSC Gives Report

Oregon farmland values continued to move upward this spring to a level nearly 5 percent above a year ago, reports Mrs Elvira Horrell, extension agricultural economist at Oregon State College.

On March 1 of this year, the per-acre value of farmlands in the state, with improvements, stood 2 percent higher than last November and nearly 5 percent above March 1959, Mrs Horrell found as she studied reports from the USDA agricultural research service.

Grazing land values increased the most during the year, registering an 8 percent jump, Mrs Horrell noted. Irrigated land in the state was up 5 percent and dry farmland up 3 percent.

Rate of farm sales stayed about the same as the previous year, Mrs Horrell said. About 67 out of each 1000 farms in the state changed hands. Voluntary sales and trades made up about 52 of these, foreclosures 5, and other sales 10.

Total market value of farm real estate in Oregon is now estimated at around $2 billion, Mrs Horrell also found. This is close to $100 million over the previous year, for an increase of about 5 percent.

Average value per acre of this farmland was estimated at $97.64. And while this was an increase over the previous year, the average value of farmlands in Oregon is still below the estimated national value per acre.

Nationally, farmland values increased only 3 percent last year in contrast to advances of 6 to 8 percent yearly during the 1956-58 period. Although all regions reported smaller increases, the slowdown was most pronounced in the Corn Belt, Lake States, and Northern Plains.

What's ahead? Many of those engaged in handling farm real estate over the nation look for a further slow down in the rate of increase in farmland values.

Those reporting from the eastern and western Corn Belt look for the greatest slowdown, with the cotton and California specialty crop areas most optimistic for larger increases.
