Record Corn Crop Due in State but Other Grains Down

A larger corn crop, but smaller crops of other grains are forecast for Oregon this year, reports Mrs Elvera Horrell, extension agricultural economist at Oregon State College.

The largest corn crop ever produced in the state is due for harvest this fall, Mrs Horrell found as she studied reports from the U S department of agriculture. A crop of more than 4 million bushels is forecast, which would be 8 percent above last year's record high and nearly 2 1/2 times the average of the past 10 years.

However, wheat, Oregon's largest cash crop, may show a drop of about 3 percent compared to last year, Mrs Horrell also found. This year's crop is forecast at about 27 million bushels. This would still be about 2 percent above average.

The state's oats crop, expected to total about 7.1 million bushels after harvest is over, will be 8 percent below last year and 29 percent less than average. Barley production is predicted to total 16 million bushels, 18 percent less than last year but 5 percent above average.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" BY C WILSON HARDER

One of the greatest mysteries of our times is how governmental leadership in a democracy can maintain policies that are in conflict with the people.

In a just recently completed nationwide poll of the nation's independent businessmen conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business, 64 percent expressed themselves in favor of the bill introduced in Congress by Senator Keating C. W. Harder which would require tariff rates to be set according to foreign wage rates. This measure would go a long way toward stopping ruinous flood of imports made with 11 cent per hour labor competing with goods made at American wage rates.

Of course, there are some who will jump up and say that the nation's 4,000,000 independent businessmen do not represent the nation as a whole.

Yet just recently Congressman Alvine Bentley released results of an extensive poll he made in his district, the eighth district in Michigan comprising some six counties in mid-Michigan where the composition of the population among farmers, businessmen, manufacturers, labor and other segments are about equal to a cross section of nation as a whole.

In his questionnaire Rep. Bentley touched on the American deficit in world trade and the loss of gold and dollars, pointing out that low cost foreign goods are being imported.

Estimates of possible horticultural crop output in the state are also varied, Mrs Horrell said. Oregon's late summer potato crop is expected to turn out a shade below last year, but 32 percent above average.

A snap bean production second only to 1958's record is in the making. The 87,600 tons expected this year would be up 5 percent over last year and 29 percent above average.

Unfavorable weather during and following pollination left its mark on the state's tree fruit and nut crops. Only the apple crop looks heavier this year, Mrs Horrell said, with cherries, peaches, pears, prunes, filberts, and walnuts all expected to drop below last year.

But the sobering question remains. How long can a democracy exist if the national policies are framed and executed by the theorists, the monopolists, the internationalists in opposition to the beliefs of the majority of the people.

The situation can be corrected. No matter how firmly entrenched, bureaucracy can be routed by ballots.

As to be expected with the technique of questioning used by Rep. Bentley, there was not a clear cut majority for any one of these solutions, but it is evident that at least 90% of the people in the midlands of Michigan are opposed to the present national policies in the international field.

Actually, this supporting data should not be necessary, because the nation's 4,000,000 independent businessmen are a quite representative segment of national thought.

But the sobering question remains. How long can a democracy exist if the national policies are framed and executed by the theorists, the monopolists, the internationalists in opposition to the beliefs of the majority of the people.

The situation can be corrected. No matter how firmly entrenched, bureaucracy can be routed by ballots.
