GOP Guessing Contest Brings Many Entries

The elephane guessing contest at the Republican booth at the Morrow County Fair created much interest and many favorable comments.

A total of 402 guesses were submitted on the number of elephants drawn on a large card. The entries indicated there were people attending the fair from Michigan, Connecticut, Portland, Mercer Island, Walla Walla, Enterprise, Hermiston, Pendleton, Condon, Irrigon and Boardman.

No one guessed the exact number—254. Ginny Lou Turner, Heppner, guessed 253 and Pat Miller, Boardman, guessed 255. A drawing between these two closest entries for the large stuffed elephant made Ginny Lou Turner the winner.

The guesses on the number of elephants ranged between 30 and 50,000.

The Republican Central Committee wishes to take this opportunity to thank all those who helped make the booth a success.

Prices Hold Up

ing hogs were Paul Webb; Mrs O W Cutsforth; Dick's Flower Shop; Kenneth Smouse; Alvin Wagenblast; Northwest Livestock Association; Billy Doherty and the Peterson Ranch.

WRONG WINNER

Last week's "hurry up" story on 4-H livestock fair winners was largely correct except that it cheated one youngster out of a grand champion award — the story gave it to the wrong person.

This week we'll give it back. In the 4-H livestock division Steven Pettyjohn should have been credited with showing the grand champion market hog and David Anderson with the reserve champion.

Blue Tongue Sheep Disease Spread by Insects, OSC Says

Blue tongue, a serious virus disease of sheep, has broken out recently in the Pacific Northwest.

Symptoms of the disease, diagnosis, treatment, and vaccination are discussed in a bulletin just published by Oregon State College Extension Service. Free copies of the bulletin "Blue Tongue Disease of Sheep" may be obtained from local county extension agents or by writing the OSC bulletin clerk, Corvallis.

Blue tongue is a warm weather disease carried from sheep to sheep by flying insects. Main symptoms, in addition to a blue tongue, include sluggishness, loss of appetite, and high temperature. A bluish red band develops along the upper edge of the hooves.

The virus, itself, seldom kills sheep but it weakens their resistance to other diseases. Deaths are usually due to complicating pneumonia.

The bulletin stresses the importance of a clinical diagnosis by a veterinarian. Detailed suggestions are included in the four-page illustrated bulletin published jointly by the extension services of OSC, Washington State University, and University of Idaho.
