THIS LITTLE PIG is "fit to be tied," but Martha Peck, 12, daughter of Mr and Mrs Kenneth Peck of Lexington, showed she knew how to protect baby pigs from anemia. She gave the prize winning demonstration at the State Fair by giving iron shots to a baby pig. (See story)

County Girl Champion Junior Demonstrator At State Fair

Giving a baby pig its iron shot to prevent anemia won a champion ribbon in junior agriculture demonstrations at State Fair for Martha Peck, eleven year old 4-H club member from Lexington. Her demonstration, "How To Prevent Baby Pig Anemia" showed correct techniques for giving iron shots to baby pigs. It also included a discussion of anemia and steps to follow in preventing it, according to Joe Hay, county extension agent.

After giving her demonstration in the afternoon, Martha was interviewed on KOAC radio that evening. She also presented her demonstration again on KOAC TV. One of the judges of the demonstration contest viewed her demonstration again on TV and
