Speedy Breakfast For Teen-Agers

"I like something that I can eat in a hurry," a teen-ager commented and her mother agreed. The answer? An orange flavored cereal nog with honey bran muffins. It takes just 5 seconds to whirl the cereal nog and the muffins are ready to eat just as is! Such a speedy breakfast provides one-fourth of the recommended amounts of calories for a teen-age girl and one-third of the protein allowance.

If your teen-age daughter refuses to eat breakfast because she "doesn't have time," encourage her to try a cereal nog with muffins. It's quick, refreshingly different, and makes a good contribution towards meeting her daily nutritional requirements. During September—the 10th Anniversary of Better Breakfast Month, encourage your teen-agers to start each day with an adequate morning meal. They will feel better, work better, and be less fatigued throughout the entire morning.

Orange Cereal Nog
 1 cup cooled cooked rolled oats, quick or regular; or cooled cooked hot whole wheat cereal, instant or regular
 1 cup chilled orange juice
 1 egg
 2 tablespoons sugar
 1/4 cup instant dry milk solids
 1/2 cup chilled milk

Measure all ingredients into blender container. Blend about 5 seconds. If no blender is available beat until thoroughly mixed with hand or electric mixer. Chill if desired. Yield: 3 cups.

High School Math Instruction Improving

Highest-ever scores on mathematics placement tests given new Oregon State College freshmen this fall indicate that Oregon schools have made great advances in math instruction during the past two or three years, the head of the OSC mathematics department reports.

Dr. A. T. Lonseth said the performance of new freshmen in the mathematics examinations this fall was "significantly better than ever before and speaks highly for the work of most high schools." The placement tests are given new freshmen to help determine for which classes they are best prepared.

More than twice as many students qualified for advanced placement this fall in calculus and analytic geometry as a year ago, according to Dr. Albert R. Poole, professor of mathematics in charge of the tests. The upper scores on the tests were from 8 to 10 points higher than last year and enrollment in remedial courses for students who need special help in math is going down sharply.

Poole also pointed to the increased numbers of women students in the ranks of the high scorers. One coed had a perfect score on the advanced algebra test—a feat matched by only one man among the new freshmen.

Coeds are encouraged to consider mathematics as a major field of study, he added, because career opportunities are excellent for them in such fields as teaching, computer work, etc. Many coeds are "scared out" of mathematics, he lamented, when the truth is that they can do just as well as the men.

The number of mathematics majors at OSC has shot up in the past five years, Lonseth noted. In 1955, OSC had two students majoring in mathematics. This year, there are 137 plus nearly 60 students working for master's and doctor's degrees.

Teacher institutes sponsored by the National Science Foundation are contributing in great measure to the rapid upgrading of mathematics training across the country, Lonseth believes.

OSC, for example, has conducted mathematics institutes for junior and senior high school teachers the past two summers, is offering an in-service institute on an evening commuter basis this year, and has given academic-year institutes for science-math teachers each of the past four years. All have been supported by National Science Foundation grants.

Sputnik helped focus the attention of the world on mathematics and science, the OSC mathematicians said, and giant electronic computers have helped open vast new fields of mathematics.

Today, mathematicians are in great demand by industry, research agencies, the government, military services and schools. The future looks even brighter, Lonseth emphasized.

Former Resident Recalls Pioneer Days and Ways

G. B. Swaggart of Woodburn, who lived here 34 years ago, was in town Monday greeting old friends. In 1925 and 1926 he operated the Central Market, and prior to that operated a farm in Morrow county.

Mr. Swaggart said that he knew every one of the people who perished in the flood years ago, and also recalled how his father developed the Creamline strain of saddle horses which have become famous in the West, by crossing an Indian pony mare with highly-bred stallions. Other memories were of stores extending credit to homesteaders for a year or more during hard times, and he also recounted the articles that went to make up a winter's supply of food for the family—a far cry from T.V. dinners and canned foods of today.

DESCHUTES COUNTY TREASURER VISITS HERE

Either-Sex Deer Permits Being Taken Up Rapidly

Oregon hunters are advised that management either-sex deer permits are going fast with only 10 units left which have permits available. Permits are being issued on a first come, first served basis and because of the rapidity at which these permits are being issued, the game commission said there is no guarantee that all hunters who submit applications will receive a permit for the unit applied for.

Following the first weekend of the deer season, hunters flooded the game commission's Portland office with unit applications filling 10 units immediately. The game commission said that the remaining units will probably fill within a week.

Hunters are advised that if ap-lications are filed for filled units these applications would not be returned for refiling. The game commission said that by the time these applications were reprocessed permit quotas for other units would already be filled.

A few permits still remain for the Beulah, Imnaha, Malheur River, Wenaha, Minam, Owyhee, Snake River, Steens Mountains, Whitehorse, and Willamette units. Quotas for these units will probably be filled within a few days.

Lyle Jensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Nash, has been made a Private First Class in the army. He is now stationed at Killen, Texas.

SAVE OREGON Jobs and Payrolls

Don't be fooled by a fancy sounding ballot title! Ballot Measure 15 is NOT DESIGNED to protect scenery but rather to destroy vital jobs and payrolls . . . to cripple Oregon's $176,000,000 tourist industry. It will authorize the state to build government-owned billboards with your tax money. Protect your pocketbook.

FARMERS for KENNEDY

State The Facts

1. Through uncontrolled inflation costs are up. Real taxes are up 700% in this country over the past 12 years. Other costs are up in like proportion. Net income is down in the same proportion.

2. Nixon's settlement of the steel strike started a new inflationary spiral. This forces us to realize the hopelessness of inflation being controlled under Republican policies. Benson has spent more funds than all other Secretaries of Agriculture combined.

3. The Democratic farm program gives us an opportunity, as explained by Congressman Al Ullman, to put into effect the Oregon Wheat League program, which has been vetoed by the last three Republican Presidents.

We therefore must protect our income and the economy of this area by voting for Senator John F. Kennedy for President.
