There is a fear that the ever-growing mechanization of agriculture, along with other advanced farming techniques and tools, will lead to the virtual disappearance of the family farm, and its replacement with big corporation farms.

Dr. Karl D. Butler, one of this country's leading agricultural economists, vigorously disputes this view. He writes: "The family farm is not disappearing. True, some family farms are finding it convenient to incorporate. If this is corporate farming, make the most of it, but actually a very small percentage of all the farms in the United States are either corporation farms or incorporated. The majority are family-owned and family-operated. In fact, today about 96 or 97 per cent of all the farms in the United States are family-operated units. There has been no significant decrease in the proportion of family farms during the last 20 or 30 years.

Dr. Butler also says that the number of professional farm managers has actually declined a little in recent years, which means that the percentage of owner-operators has shown an increase.

Actually, mechanization has meant salvation for the family farm, whether or not it has gone through the formality of incorporation. It has made possible more production at reduced cost. Even more important in the long pull, it has given the small, as well as the large, farmer the means of improving and conserving irreplaceable land—the "six inches of topsoil" that stand between us and famine. It has reduced or eliminated back-breaking drudgery. It has made farming a business and profession, while maintaining it as a way

... represent much more than mere money value. They are the proof that the saver is worth something to himself. Any fool can waste; any fool can muddle; but it takes something more of a man to save and the more he saves the more of a man he makes of himself. Waste and extravagance unsettle a man's mind for every crisis; thrift, which means some form of self-restraint, steadies it.

NOW... AUTOMATIC CHRISTMAS CLUB DEPOSITS!

Now there's a new, easier way to prepay holiday expenses. It's a system of automatic deposits to Christmas Club, the special savings plan which lets you put small amounts away through the year, then receive a large sum by check just before the holidays.

HOW THE FIRST NATIONAL AUTOMATIC TRANSFER PLAN WORKS:

1. Be sure you have a checking account at First National Bank of Oregon. If you do not now have a checking account at First National, you can open one quickly and easily at your nearby Branch.
2. Ask any teller or officer at your First National Branch for a signature card for "Christmas Club Plan No. 1," for monthly automatic transfer to your Christmas Club account.
3. Check the amount you wish transferred each month from your checking account to your Christmas Club account. (Choice of six even amounts: $2.50, $5.00, $10.00, $15.00, $25.00, or $50.00 per month.) Sign and hand the card to any teller or bank officer.
4. As your checking account statement is returned to you each month, you receive a reminder that the amount you specified has been transferred to Christmas Club savings. This will remind you to make the deduction on your check records.
5. These transfers continue automatically for ten months, from January through October. The same authorization is continued from year to year, unless you wish to cancel it.
6. That's all you do! You need not stop in at the bank with your Christmas Club receipt book, or remember from week to week to make your deposit. You simply relax, and next November you will receive a check for the full amount in your Christmas Club account, plus interest.

YES! YOU MAY STILL ELECT TO USE THE REGULAR CHRISTMAS CLUB PLAN!

The regular Christmas Club, weekly cash deposit plan is still preferred by many people. Under this plan, you get a Christmas Club receipt book, and drop in at any First National Branch each week to make a small cash deposit. These deposits continue for 50 weeks, and just before Christmas next year, you receive your check for the full amount saved, plus interest.
