A Civil Defense meeting will be held Tuesday, August 15, in civil defense information presentation to discuss the rural gram.

The meeting is designed to acquaint civil defense personnel, members of the U. S. Department of Agriculture county emergency planning committees and county agents with the rural civil defense information program which was recently assigned the Department of Agriculture by President Kennedy as a part of the shift of responsibilities from the Office of Civil Defense Mobilization.

School Band Practice To Begin Monday

Vacation is over for music students of the Heppner schools. Arnold Melby, band director announces. Evening practice will begin at 7 p. m. Monday, August 14, for musicians in grades 8 through 12. All 6th and 7th grade band members are to report for rehearsal at 10 a. m., August 15.

The students will meet at the high school band room, though the evening group will do a lot of practice marching while playing so residents of the town will be able to hear them, Melby said.

The first fall appearance will be at the Shrine game in Pendleton on August 26. Pictures of those who will play at this event will be taken August 18 at the regular practice session.

The director said that any student unable to attend these practice sessions should turn in his band uniform so that it can be re-issued to those who will represent their school and community at the Shrine Game.

Attendance of the summer practices is not compulsory, nor will it affect the student's grades.

"Those who attend will have a running start over others when the regular school term begins," Melby said.

New students in the area who expect to take band are encouraged to report at these beginning practices to be lined up for instruments and uniforms.

Except during fair days daily practice will be held at the same hour for each group, the five school days of each week.

Work Moves Fast On Gas Pipeline

Construction of the $300 million Alberta-California natural gas pipeline has passed the halfway mark and is ahead of schedule in most sections, Charles Pennypacker Smith, vice president and manager of Pacific Gas Transmission Company, has announced.

Major segments of the 3,400 mile pipeline in Alberta, British Columbia, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California have been installed and work is coming along well, Smith said.

"We expect that the pipeline will be ready for deliveries in November, as planned," the Pacific Gas Transmission Company vice president said.

Smith reported this area-by-area construction program:

Oregon—Pipe has been installed from the California border northward to the vicinity of Condon, in the north central part of the state, except for the crossings of the Crooked and John Day Rivers.

Washington—All mainline pipe is in the ground across the Palouse country and in the Spokane Valley. Work is continuing on the Snake River and Walla Walla River crossings.

Idaho—Trenching and installation of pipe have moved from the Washington border across the Pend Oreille River and are advancing northward toward Bonners Ferry and the British Columbia line.

British Columbia—Pipe laying crews have moved from Kingsgate on the Idaho border across 6,600 Moyle Mountain and are advancing eastward toward the Kootenay River. A second construction crew is working westward through a Crownsnest Pass on the Continental Divide. Work is moving ahead rapidly on the large Crownsnest Compressor Station and ground has been broken on the Cranbrook maintenance base and the border meter station at Kingsgate.

Alberta—Construction is proceeding rapidly on the Alberta Gas Trunk Line Company's 351 miles of main line, on gathering laterals from the Alberta gas fields and on a delivery lateral to Montana.

California—One construction crew has placed more than 100 miles of pipe in the ground north of the Oregon border. A second is moving south down the Sacramento Valley. Work has begun on crossings of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers near San Francisco Bay.

More than 4,000 men have been at work building the 36-inch diameter pipeline.
