were covered by mud from the Morgan street extension graded to the new high school here. He said that the board had agreed to provide for runoff water from the road and had not done so to this time.

This led to some discussion as to whether improvements of portions of the street were school district or city responsibility. It was thought out that the board had had good cooperation from both county and city on the project, and Board Chairman, D. O. Nelson assured Anderson that the matter would be "taken care of right away."

Don McElligott, member of the lone advisory committee, brought up another problem, that of the hazard presented by buses stopping in areas hidden by blind corners on the highway. Children loading and unloading in these places are in danger, he pointed out.
