SPRING FEVER? Me, too! And if this contraption called a typewriter doesn't start working a little more smoothly, think I'll skip the writing and go paint eaves! I must remember not to hit the "back spacer" as it seems to be the "fly in the ointment."

AFTER TWO weeks play in the Elks pinocle tournament, Jan Agee and Leann Rea are leading the 14 couples with Prudy Casebeer and Mildred Yarnell in second spot. Winners of the Wednesday night play were Jan and Leann, high, and Bob Flatt and Frank Hamlin, second high.

MARION ABRAMS entertained the Nine Tricks bridge club at her home Thursday evening. The prizes went to Rita Wolff, high; Jean Williamson, second; and Arolene Laird, low. Others making up the two tables of play were June Spencer, Meg Murray, Sue Jones, Margaret Siewert, and Karen Thompson.

I UNDERSTAND the Episcopal church women are going to serve the supper at Ladies Night tonight (Thursday). Happy Graham and Hazel Mahoney have cooked up a storm, so why not treat yourselves to a night out?

Playing were Prudy Casebeer, Jo Huston, Leann Rea, Alvina Padberg, Mildred Yarnell, Janina Johnson, Alta and Loree. Prudy took high honors with Jo coming in second. Alta had the highest hand for the evening.

Enjoying the fun were Don Munkers, Barbara Blake, Bruce Spencer, Jan Hager, Kip Morris, Tana Valentine, Sheridan Wyman, and Dean Lovgren. All were excited over the taffy pull. Of course all of it didn't turn out exactly right; some turned to sugar in the process! Cakes and chip and dip were served during the evening.

won the traveling pinocle, and Hannah Anderson won low. Others were Millie Evans, Carrie Beckett, Beulah Mankin, and Gladys. When I asked Gladys about high hands, she said it just wasn't the day for good cards but lots of fun anyhow!

ONE OF the oldest bridge clubs in Heppner, met January 18 at the home of Sadie Parrish for two tables of duplicate play. Sadie said the club had been organized before she came to Heppner some years ago! They always plan to meet twice a month as much as possible. Making up the play were Etta Parker, Ruth McMurdo, Flora Nys, Fay Ferguson, Della McCurdy, Lucille Wilson, Grace Turner, and Sadie. The winning team was Etta, Fay, Lucille, and Sadie.

LIVING IN a small town for years, many of us have a number of relatives living nearby, as is the case of Beverly Blake, recently installed Rainbow worthy advisor. And to make a long story short, I credited the wrong grandmother pouring at the tea table! It should have read Mrs. Lucille Wilson, not Mrs. Kenneth Blake.

ELLA SMITH reviewed the book, "Only in America," written by Harry Golden at the Bookworms meeting last Tuesday. Golden is editor and publisher of the Carolina Israelite, and this book is a series of articles from his newspaper over the years. He tells of his youth growing up on New York's lower east side among other immigrant families and of the racial problems. Members discussing the book were Sadie Parrish, Virginia Turner, Leta Humphreys, Madge Thomson, Florence Green, and Lucy Peterson, hostess. Sadie will host the next meeting February 12 at her home.

THE BURNS-Heppner game Saturday caused mixed emotions for Burns graduate, Betty Brown, who resides here and has two boys in school, Chris, freshman, and Mark, an eighth grader. Also two of the Highlanders' cheerleaders were her cousins. Small world!

Rockhound Corner

By BETTY WAGNER

On January 21 the local rock hounds began a new year of meetings with vice-president, Mrs. Rachel Harnett, presiding. Because of so many conflicting engagements, the next meeting will be held a week earlier than usual; so schedule it for February 17. Also I wish to make a correction to a statement I made in the previous article. There it was stated that Harold Sanders was the first president of the rock club; actually, Walter Edger was the first president, John Newman was vice-president, and Mrs. Sanders was program chairman.

Randall Peterson arranged our program which was very interesting. He showed colored slides and read a manuscript explaining the slides, compiled by Emory Stone of Portland. The slides were entitled "Stone Age on the Columbia River" and showed many views of the Indian petroglyphs on the boulders and cliffs along the Columbia River. Most of these petroglyphs are now under water which formed the lake when The Dalles dam was completed. The excellent photog-

Needlette 4-H Club Reorganizes For Year

On January 6, the last year's lone Singin' Swingin' Needlettes conducted their organization meeting at Cheryl Corley's. This year the enrollment of the club has decreased to four, and the new name of the club is the Needlettes. Instead of electing officers, the club members drew for the offices. The results were: Cheryl Corley, president; Karen Hams, vice president; Elaine Gaarsland, secretary; Arleta McCabe, news reporter; and Ruth McCabe, song leader. The club members will begin working in phases 4 and 5 in sewing.

raphy of the slides revealed many well-preserved and ancient pictures of sunbursts, mountain goats, hunters, elk, and the very interesting water-devils. These water-devils all differed in design according to the individual artist's abilities, but they were used to designate the ownership of the family fishing grounds along the river. These fishing areas remained in the family and were handed down from one generation to another. To put the "frosting" on an enjoyable evening, we enjoyed refreshments served by our hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Blevins.
