

Dairy Calves Brought in Each Year Since 1950 From Tillamook County

DAVID WRIGHT, (left), Heppner, is proud owner of two spring Tillamook calves which will be his project for his first year. Young brother, Dean, helps hold the calves. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wright, lead five boys and girls in the Hardman Livestock club.

In 1950 the first Tillamook dairy calves were brought into Morrow county for 4-H projects. Every year since, 4-H members have obtained dairy calves through the Tillamook Dairy Herd Improvement Association, stated Joe Hay, county extension agent.

Many a 4-H member has gotten a start in livestock projects by purchasing one of these calves. The program has grown from four or five to an average of 15 purchased in the past 3 years.

Calves purchased from the Tillamook Dairy Herd Improvement association are all from cows producing three hundred pounds of butterfat or more per year. With the DHIA records, 4-H members know they are purchasing quality animals for their project.

Many of these heifers which are raised as 4-H projects remain to provide the family milk supply. Others are sold to neighbors for family cows. Through this program the quality of family milk cows in the county has been greatly improved.

Already this year, five Tillamook calves were brought into the county. Two went to David Wright, first year club member of Hardman 4-H, and the other three went to Terry and Sue Greenup, Hoof and Horn Livestock.

Nine more calves are ordered for other dairy 4-H members.

Yogi Bear Reigns at Camp

By JOE HAY

Yogi Bear and his friends reigned supreme at the 1961 4-H Summer camp at Cutsforth Park held in July. Last year's camp theme was "Yogi Bear in Jellystone Park." Fifty-four Morrow county boys and girls and ten counsellors enjoyed the three-day outing in July.

4-H club members between the ages of nine and thirteen are eligible for 4-H Summer Camp each year. Camp counsellors are picked from older 4-H members who are freshmen in high school or older.

Every year campers have many varied activities while at their three-day camp. They have fun playing such sports as softball, volleyball and badminton. Classes on forestry, wild flowers, crafts, camp safety, outdoor cooking, and hiking as well as many others are provided to help campers appreciate and understand the out-of-doors.

While at 4-H Summer Camp, campers often provide their own entertainment. Last year the first evening was devoted to story telling by the camp counsellors. Each counsellor told stories about Yogi Bear and his friends in Jellystone Park. The second evening, a movie called "Bear Country" was shown to the campers. In addition to the movie, campers participated in various games, races and relays. The third night was stunt night. Each tent of campers put on a skit or a stunt which they had prepared while at camp. Much laughter was created by the various skits and stunts.

On Sunday, the last day of camp, Rev. David Bauer, Seventh-day Adventist minister, came to camp for the morning service. Following the Sunday service campers were given a choice of a tour to Coal Mine Hill to dig for fossils or a tour to hunt for wild flowers. On Sunday afternoon the parents came to camp for their children and helped to take the camp down and put it away for another year.

All 4-H boys and girls between the ages of nine and thirteen who are interested in going to 4-H Summer Camp this year should mark July 12-15 on their calendar. These are the dates set for the 1962 4-H Summer Camp.

In addition to the camping fees paid by each camper, the 4-H Leaders Council heavily subsidizes the camping program in Morrow county. Without the many hours of labor donated by 4-H leaders for improving the camp and the additional money for camp operation, 4-H boys and girls would not be able to participate in such a fine camping experience.
