Pacific Power Urges Showing of Film

At least ten lives have been saved, several of them infants, by use of a mouth-to-mouth resuscitation method learned by persons who have seen it demonstrated in a film made available for public showings by Pacific Power & Light Company. "Probabilities are that additional lives of injured or stricken persons have been saved, but the company has learned of at least ten saved as a result of the public showing of the safety film," according to PP&L's manager, Fred Gimbel. The manager said the company is hopeful that more local organizations will take advantage of the offer of the company to loan the film free for public showings. He said more school-age children and parents of infants should be given the opportunity to learn the life-saving method. Arrangements for borrowing the film can be made at the nearest PP&L office, he said.
