Extension Alumni To Hear Speaker On Orient Monday

M.

In 1957 Mrs. Jakku represented Oregon women at the Associated Country Women of the World (ACWW) conference in Colombo, Ceylon. Ceylon is an island in the Indian Ocean 31 miles off the southern tip of India. The ACWW conference is held once every three years for members of some 66 affiliated member societies throughout the world. (1962 Triennial will be in Melbourne, Australia.)

A total of 200 women, including 51 from the U.S., attended the conference. As the women got acquainted and met in roundtable groups, national lines were erased and an "International oneness" reigned, Mrs. Jakku reports.

The present county advisors committee, acting as hostesses for this event, have sent out invitations to 30 women who have served on the county committee since extension units were started in the county some sixteen years ago.

An oriental luncheon is planned for the ladies and each is asked to bring a "White Elephant" gift (about $1.00 value) to the gathering. She should also be prepared to buy someone else's "White Elephant."

There will be a short business meeting and election of 1962-63 county committee officers during the noon hour.

Kindergarten classes will end with the picnic on Friday and take up in the fall. All parents with kindergarten age children for the 1962-63 year are asked to call Mrs. McLeod, Mrs. Matt Hughes, or Mrs. Jim Brock. A survey of students is needed now to organize the program for next year.

The students and decorating committee used a red and white color scheme, red and white carnations as centerpieces, and a red and white plaque on the stage with the letters, "H.G.S.," inscribed. Also on the stage was a gold tree with red and white mortarboards hanging from the limbs. Another decorative attraction was the huge open book on one wall with each student's name and on one page were the names of the faculty.

The graduates enjoyed dancing and mixers after the banquet to make the evening complete for 61 students.
