

Lamb and Wool Condition Better, Says Harold Cohn

Lamb and wool people are in better financial condition this year than they have been for some time. Wool is more stable and "things in the sheep world are really looking up," said Harold Cohn, Heppner, Saturday at a meeting of the Oregon Wool Growers Executive committee in Salem.

The group met Saturday afternoon and carried over for a dinner meeting at night at which they were joined by the Wool Growers auxiliary and other sheep men.

"We certainly aren't out of the woods yet," said Cohn, president of the group, "but we feel we are swinging upward again. However, we still do have tariff problems. But demand for lamb has increased and wool is now being used faster than we can produce it. We've even had to import some to keep up with demand." Cohn continued. He added that the big surplus of a couple of years ago is now "mostly gone," and that "sheepmen should really be in a very happy mood."

In the Willamette Valley, the eastern Oregon man said, "few depend entirely upon sheep for a livelihood. East of the mountains there are many who depend entirely upon sheep."

He also said that for a time

Medical Meetings Attended by Doctors

Dr. A. D. McMurdo and Dr. W. H. Wolff were among the area doctors who attended the Umatilla county Medical Society meeting in Pendleton Tuesday evening.

On Wednesday Dr. McMurdo motored to the Hot Lake hospital near La Grande to attend the regional meeting of the Oregon Nursing Homes, Inc. He was on a team of eight medical panel members who discussed problems involved in "Medicare For The Aging" at the evening meeting.

the Willamette Valley growers were not paying too much attention to quality, but this has changed. Lamb and wool production has "greatly improved west of the mountains."

Two new woolen clothing materials were discussed by members of the auxiliary. The so-called "naked wool" is becoming very popular, they said, as is also another new linen-finish wool which is very light weight.

This is the organization which assisted the National Wool Growers in obtaining the incentive payment on lambs and wool. One cent a pound of the incentive payment is deducted annually and this goes to the American Producer's Council for lamb and wool promotion. The incentive payments are not tax money, it was explained. The funds for these come from the tariff and are actually paid by importers through tariffs.

"A FUNNY THING happened on the way to the office," is the lead for this unusual picture which will appear in a national advertisement for Portland General Electric company in the July issue of Fortune magazine and the July 28 issue of Business Week. It's one of many efforts made by PGE's area development department to induce people and industry to "come to Oregon where the market is growing and the living is fun."
