54% of Oregon's Farms Sell 96% Of Farm Products
 Only 54 percent of Oregon's farms are classified as commercial, yet they sell 86 percent of the state's farm products while the other 46 percent, including part-time and part-retirement, sell only four percent, reports Mrs. Elvera Horrell, Oregon State University extension agricultural economist.
 Citing figures from the 1959 U. S. Census of Agriculture, Mrs. Horrell noted that 42 percent of sales from three percent of the farms reporting sales of $40,000 or more. Some seven percent of the farms reported sales totaling $20,000 to $39,999 or 21 percent of all sales.
 Cattle and calves, wheat and dairy, in that order, account for more than two-fifths of the cash receipts to the state's farmers, Mrs. Horrell stated. On the average, three out of four dollars received were required to operate and maintain the business.
 The Meridian or "middle" income of rural farm families in Oregon in 1959 was $4,824 as compared with $6,286 in the cities, she added.
 The census also revealed that Oregon farms vary from less than 10 to more than 10,000 acres. The average holding is 500 acres with a value for land and buildings of about $42,000.
 Most of Oregon's farm operators are either full or part owners, with more than nine out of ten farmers in this category, she said. A comparison with other years shows that in practically every measurement except farm numbers and farm operators, farming in Oregon is growing, Mrs. Horrell pointed out.
 Other information revealed by the census shows that in 1959 some 84 percent of the farms had telephones; 64 percent reported home freezers; 71 percent had trucks; 82 percent owned tractors; and 87 percent, automobiles.
