HI EVERYONE, not too much brewing the past week. I think all are vacationing or getting ready for the up-coming fair. Always a hectic time, agriculture 4-H members prepping up their animals, and as Lenna Smith says about home economics members, "Trying to get the garment all together. At least the animals are in one piece!"

IF YOU don't believe everyone reads the Gazette-Times, ask all Little League and Farm Team boys! Boy, when you make a mistake like getting in the wrong name, you learn about it soon! Anyhow thanks for telling me.

TWO BRIDGE dates to remember are the semi-monthly play at the Episcopal parish hall Tuesday, August 14, and the Unit duplicate party at the Heppner grade school multipurpose room, Sunday, August 19, at 2:00 p.m.

SUMMER IS not summer without tomatoes, and this year the crop is later than usual. According to Oregon State University extension service, the 1962 crop, at 500 acres, is 50 acres below last year and 280 below average. Terms for tomatoes: greenhouse or hot-house tomatoes, those grown under glass and picked at the pink stage, when more than half the surface is colored; field-grown, an advertising term usually referring to tomatoes grown in nearby areas picked at the pink to a firm-ripe stage; vine-ripened, usually refers to shipped-in tomatoes. They are fully ripened but were harvested at the turning-to-pink stage.

Store fully-ripe tomatoes in refrigerator to prevent over-ripening. Those needing more ripening should be placed in a dry dark place away from light.

WATCH FOR turkeys to be featured in the markets during the next weeks. This year there is an over-abundant supply. Also beef cuts will be a best buy item. Pork supplies are limited and prices about the same. This is peach canning time and peaches are reaching the markets for eating, canning, or freezing.
