

TO THE EDITOR...

To the Editor:
I wonder if some of us friends of Al Ullman should speak up for him. Of course it's easy to shoot No. 7s in the air and say everyone the shot hits is a leftist and such charges are hard to answer because all issues are avoided.

The Farmers Union or its members are not leftists. I think of its membership here in Morrow county almost all of whom have bought and paid for their farms out of farm earnings, which isn't always true of other industry-backed farm organizations or its members.

Yes, Al voted for the farm bill which was sponsored not only by the Farmers Union, but the exchange, Wheat League and the Co-ops.

This must be in the opinion of some of Al's opponents, be left-handed, too. Wasn't it one of our oldest Republican house members when representing the Wheat League in Washington, D. C., who said, "Everything I heard and everything I read opposing the farm bill was false."

Wasn't it one of the officials of the Green Giant Canning Corp. who said to us in Walla Walla at two farm bill planning meetings, "Gentlemen, you're wasting your time. We'll never let you get control of your own markets." And they didn't either.

We have going on at this time a national persecution of agriculture started in the Benson era and carried on by a subsidized press and a tariff-protected industry.

It must be remembered that many Congressmen are elected by labor and they have been led to believe during the Benson era that a fair price to agriculture will increase the cost of living, and also that southern Democrats, due to segregation, do not consistently vote with the rest of the party. These are some of the factors which make good farm legislation hard to come by with almost all of the Republicans voting politically against it.

I do not see how a stockman can oppose our present men in congress when they see the great work done in the rehabilitation of our rangeland in Central Oregon. It's worth anyone's time to see it. One could actually mow hay in places where it was once all sagebrush.

We farmers must always remember that we are producers of raw materials and as such we must always be at odds with industry which must constantly strive for cheap raw materials and supplies.

As for the Telstar Bill, it was opposed in the most part because it was a monopoly, and they wanted to slow up the action on the bill for a year or so. At this late date I see that several of the major newspapers of the nation are getting around to this view.

Why, years ago, didn't we give all forms of transportation, automobile and all to Jim Hill, all fuels to John P., or all communications, television and all to Graham Bell? It's the same thing only bigger.

To the Editor:

In reply to a request for an opinion from the Pioneer Memorial hospital medical staff relative to the possible distribution of Sabin oral polio vaccine by a PTA sponsored clinic, we make the following recommendations.

Both the Salk vaccine and the Sabin vaccines are good vaccines for the prevention of poliomyelitis.

Both vaccines break the chain of transmission. The oral vaccine leads to the development of a resistance in the intestinal tract to the multiplication of the virus and thus provides a barrier to transmission. Salk vaccine does not work in this way but experience has proven that where it is well-used the chain is broken. Prior to the use of live Sabin vaccine in this country, Type II polio virus had been reduced to the point where it was very difficult to find. Salk vaccine has brought about the virtual elimination of polio from Sweden.

Both vaccines probably impart immunity equal to that resulting from an attack by live, virulent virus. There is no factual proof that oral vaccine will impart more durable immunity than Salk vaccine. The booster dose of Salk vaccine is a single injection while that of Sabin vaccine is undetermined.

The Sabin vaccine is more readily dispensed at large clinics. Recently the public health departments of Oregon, Washington, numerous other states and Canada have advised against the use of Type III Sabin vaccine because of an increased incidence of paralytic polio in individuals receiving the vaccine.

Salk vaccine and Types I and II Sabin vaccine have been and are available through local physicians and many in this community have already been immunized. We are aware of no patient who has been refused vaccine because of inability to pay. At this time there is no need for additional distribution outlets or any real need for a free clinic. When the recent widely disseminated and unfavorable publicity to the use of oral vaccine has been dissipated and the questions regarding its use have been resolved we shall be happy to reconsider your suggestion.

Mrs. Robinson Home, Shows Improvement

Mrs. Don (Merlyn) Robinson is now at home at the Kirk and Robinson ranch, recuperating from injuries sustained September 17 when she was trampled by a cow. She suffered a bad fracture to the upper left arm and bruised feet when the heavy Hereford broke loose from its ropes and trampled her as she was helping move a herd from summer grazing.

She was taken to the Pioneer Memorial hospital for treatment and was released Wednesday. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Kirk of Hermiston, came to help out while she is confined to a body cast. It is expected that it will take some six weeks for her recovery.

Her husband was at a sale in Lakeview at the time of the accident. She said that she did not call him because she did not wish to worry him, but he is home again now.

Mrs. Robinson said that she

Black Mountain Fire Hits Sunday

Six men of the U. S. Forestry Service and a crew and equipment from Kinzua Corporation Sunday battled and controlled a fire that broke out on Black Mountain, Ranger Sam Miller of the Heppner district said.

The fire, which covered about three acres, was listed as man-caused. It was in an area where trees had been cut, and little damage was done. A lookout spotted the fire and reported it. The six foresters went to the scene at once and were joined by the force from Kinzua.

Water was used for 1 1/2 days to be sure that all sparks were out, Ranger Miller said.

A 3-day trip was enjoyed recently by the William Cox family of Heppner who joined his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clair H. Cox of Corvallis, and family to motor to Frenchglen for sightseeing in the Steen's Mountain area. Among sights of interest were Malheur Cave, Alvord Desert, Roaring Springs Rancho and Jackass Mountain. They went by way of John Day and Burns and returned through Fox Valley and Monument.
