Report: Ruhl Rolls

Dick Ruhl, Lexington-Heppner griddler on Oregon State's explosive football team, is making new laurels in his first regular year in a Beaver uniform. In the 32-0 win over Idaho Saturday, Ruhl rolled up 50 yards in eight carries, an average of 6.3 per tote. Although Dick started the year as a "third string" fullback, he has been playing more and more on offense and hardly can be rated "third string" now. A story in the Oregonian Wednesday said, "All three OSU fullbacks—Booker Washington, Bruce Williams and Dick Ruhl—have begun to run with abandon and power."

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hartle spent Saturday, November 3, to Sunday, November 11, elk hunting at Austin Junction east of John Day. Joe was on vacation from the Gazette-Times where he is a printer. Joe confesses that he had shots at elk on four separate occasions but missed each time.
