

BOWLING BITS

By JO PETTYJOHN

MANY INTERESTING things happened the past week in the bowling department with Lexington Co-op moving from seventh place to third by virtue of winning four games from Bi-County Monday night. The Co-op team was sparked by Dean Hunt who came up with a 591 series and high game of 216. Wow, what a night! Bob Kilkenny of Bi-County had an even 500 series and Fritz Cutsforth had high game for Bi-County of 175.

OTHER men's bowling action saw the Elks team take three games from UPRR to stay in second spot. Gene Orwick of the Elks club had a fabulous 240 high game and ended up with a 520 series. The fellows have seven more nights before the end of the league play. Good luck to you!

THE GALLS did quite well for themselves as Turner, Van Marter and Bryant upset Eagle Valley by taking three of the four games. They won total pins by one mighty pin! Turner moved up into third spot, two games out of second and five out of first. Janice Cutsforth held high game for Turner with a 167 and Jean Ann Turner had high series of 453. Earlier in the evening the Padberg Machinery gals swept three games from Sheets to tie them for fourth place. Joyce Espy of Padberg had high series of 477 which put her in second place for the week, and she had high series for the first spot with 197, almost 200! Padberg is in first for team series with 2606 and hold second and third for team games, of 887 and 886. Turner is in second place for team series with 2571. MCGG finally got a win after eight straight losses. They took one from Burns while losing three to remain in sixth spot. Guess they like that spot! Cherry Hermann had high series for MCGG with 401 and Billie Kemp had high game of 150. The Echo City Women's tournament is set for next week March 6-7. All three of the teams from here will enter and some of the players will enter singles and doubles competition.

Student Survey Shows Summer Earnings High

The economics class at Ione High school recently completed an interesting research project. The class of 16 juniors and seniors conducted a survey of the summer earnings of Ione High school students.

A survey questionnaire was prepared by the class with assistance from instructor Glein Biehl and was distributed to all the students in the high school. Fifty-five students returned the forms.

Of the fifty-five reporting there were 33 boys, so the major occupation for summer employment is quite naturally farm work. Forty-five students reported all or part of their earnings were from farm work. The next most prevalent occupations were housework, baby sitting, checking in stores, gardening, and paper routes. Forty-one of the students obtained work from outside their immediate family, while 14 of the students worked exclusively at home.

The total earnings was surprisingly high. Four of the students earned in excess of $1000. Nineteen students earned between $500 and $1000, and 14 students earned between $100 and $300.

Twenty-two students reported they spent the major share of their earnings in Heppner, with 16 reporting they spent the largest share of their money in Portland. Ten reported they spent the largest share of their money in Pendleton. Seven of the students said they spent the largest share of their money in Hermiston. The students did not spend all of their money, for they reported they placed in savings a total of $8,869, from their summer earnings. This amount was saved by 38 of the students, for an average saving per student of $233.

The students were also asked to report what items they purchased with the money they earned during summer employment. The items that were most often mentioned in the reports of the students were clothes, cosmetics, books and magazines, car expense, candy, gifts, movies, dental and medical, and to help with the family expenses.

It was also interesting to note the students do not stop earning during the school year. The total earnings of the students during the school year reached approximately $260 per week, an average per student of $5.20 per week.

Biehl termed the project a success. The students conducted the research in a scientific manner and the results have been valuable for use during the year in the regular class work.

Pittsburgh, Penn., were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Drake and family. Mrs. Clark is conducting Sunday school workshops at the Methodist church in Heppner this week.
