his illness, Padberg was the outstanding man on the floor al though he was unable to reach the heights he had displayed in previous key contests. He was barely able to answer the buzzer to return to the game after half-time intermission but made it and became a demon against the Huskies in the waning minutes. He was all over the floor on defense fighting for the ball and his versatile moves just could not be denied. His last two baskets were made on sheer determination as he feinted de fenders out of position and made

Sherman county took command of the boards in the early part of the game, but Dick Springer was Happener's calketter than the springer day night 67 to 55. was Heppner's salvation in that category, coming down with the ball time after time. He went out on five personals late in the game, the only one in the contest to rack up five although Kellogg, Bish and Doolin all had four on them by the final buzzer.

John Porter added 11 points to the Heppner cause but had some trouble on the free throw line. He had 15 attempts and made seven. Ken Smith who fought through the season to gain a place on the starting five came through with some timely baskets to strengthen Heppner's cause. Doug Dubuque, still seeing limited action because of his old knee injury, took over for Springer and played a good

Sherman county now faces Vale of the eastern division, Greater Oregon, for the right to go to the state tournament at Coos Bay on March 18, 19 and 20. First game with Vale will be Saturday night, at Vale.

Hager, who with his wife ewel, owns and operates Hag-Bill Struthers.

President Struthers was mas-ter of ceremonies at the banquet and presented Hollis McDonald of The Dalles FFA chapter and state FFA president as principal speaker of the evening.

The fluent young state president declared that the FFA program is attempting to develop aggressive agricultural leader-ship, citizenship and cooperation. He gave some of the history and background of the organization, together with its objectives, and charged his fellow members. "It's not the opportunity you have that counts, but it's what you do with that opportunity."

Chapter report was given by Bob Hager who reviewed highlights of the year, including $200 raised by a Christmas Tree sale, attendance at the national con-vention by Wagenblast, Wright and Dean Robinson, work at The Morrow County fair, participa-tion in the Range Conservation camp, elevation of William Rill of the local chapter to State Farmer, Wagenblast's winning first place on his record book, and other achievements.

Among guests introduced were members who had honorary members who had been initiated in former years. The Mustangs couldn't get to ing in the first half and at one time trailed by 21 points, 31 to cludes Frank Anderson, Everett Harshman, John Bergstrom, Or-Marshman, Marshman, Ma ville Cutsforth, Dr. A. Oliver Creswick brought the re port to the chamber as chair-man of the development committee. He is also chairman of the new association.

The development committee had recommended the study in an effort to move towards de-velopment of parks and help solve other recreational needs.

However, the county associat-ion felt that the county should seek to find sources within its present budget to provide for possible development of the Chapin Creek park and improvements of Cutsforth park. Orville Cutsforth, chairman of he county parks committee, which operates without funds said that he favored the latter idea. He said that a minimum of $500 and maximum of $1000 would be needed for the Chapin Creek site. The Chamber also passed a esolution to be sent to the legilature asking that House Bill 2030 for watershed planning be approved without elimination of $100,000 in the appropriation. The Ways and Means committee has recommended paring that sum from the appropriation, but conservationists say that to do so will seriously delay water-shed planning and eliminate from consideration at the present time embryo projects, such as the proposed Rhea Creek plan.

Randall Peterson, reporting for he merchants committee, recommended that an envelope plan mended that an envelope plan be used for parking meter vio-lators in Heppner. He suggested that when officers find a car parked by a meter with time expired, the ticket be left with an envelope. The offender could square himself by placing 25c n the envelope within a 24-hour period and depositing it in one of a number of boxes to be placed on meter posts around
