

4-H Youth Meet Challenge Unknown in Grandad's Day

By ESTHER KIRMIS

Great-grandfather's community was limited to the few square miles he could cover with horse and wagon. Roads were improved in grandfather's time, stretching his community to nearby counties. Automobiles and airplanes broadened father's community to the entire state and then the nation.

Today the whole world is our community. Our new horizons challenge us with new dimensions of citizenship responsibility. As we are brought closer to other people over the world, one of our most pressing problems is better international understanding and world peace.

Four-H club members have a unique opportunity to help meet this challenge. Our growing family of 4-H type programs now includes 5,000,000 members in some 70 countries. By studying and working with our 4-H friends in other lands we may contribute to the growth and success of their programs, and work with them toward mutual understanding and peace among men.

Here are some ideas for Four-H clubs to try to promote International activities:

Get Acquainted with 4-H type programs in other lands—(Make a scrapbook of 4-H materials from other countries) Country Study—(Select a country of interest; study it as part of your 4-H club program).

International Exchanges—(Increase the effectiveness of the International Farm Youth Exchange (IFYE) program by serving as a host family. Help provide financial support).

Sister Clubs and Pen Pals—(Arrange for a Sister Club or Pen Pal through your 4-H leaders, IFYE's, Peace Corps volunteers, Americans living abroad, etc.)

Hospitality—(Serve as a host-for-a-day or for a week-end to foreign visitors attending our American Colleges).

International Service Projects—(Support the 4-H CARE project, the Heifer project, UNICEF and other worth-while projects.)

The "Heart-H" of the 4-H introduces club members to new horizons in citizenship. Yet it is with the "Head" and the "Hands" that we show our concern for others. Four-H type programs around the world provide hope for a better life in the years ahead. Let us encourage and support these 4-H movements over the world and with their members build understanding for a better world for all.

Information on 4-H international projects and activities is available from your county agent's office in Heppner or your state 4-H club office in Corvallis.

Hard Work Rewards 4-H Members

There is no substitute for hard work. But four Oregon youths can tell you that hard work brings rewards. All four deserving 4-H Club members earned special honors in 1962.

KAY ELLIOTT, 16, of Dallas, earned top spot in the bread demonstration program sponsored by Standard Brands Incorporated. Her "Conversational Pieces with Sweet Dough" told how to make Old Vienna Holiday Whirl and Date Braided Cake. She was a delegate to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

Miss Elliott is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Elliott who operate a 650-acre Polk County farm. The young 4-H'er has been a club member seven years and has served as secretary of her county council.

SUSAN HOCHSPEIER, 17, of Jefferson, won a $50 U.S. savings bond for her bread demonstration program. It was called the "Twist." She told how to make sweet bread dough into a twist. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hochspeier and has been a 4-H'er for eight years.

JAMES HANSEN, 17, of Dallas, took top position in the state poultry program sponsored by Heisdorf & Nelson Farms, Inc. He was a delegate to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

eight years in 4-H work to the poultry project. It has earned for him six state championships and four state reserve championships in addition to 31 blue ribbons. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. John Hansen, Polk County farm owners.

KENNETH BECK, 20, of Newport, was cited as Oregon 4-H achievement winner. Everything he did in his 10 years of club membership counted in the program sponsored by the Ford Motor Company Fund. Beck was awarded a certificate of merit.

His ability to apply 4-H Club principles to his family and community life brought him honors. Beck is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon W. Beck and is a sophomore at Oregon State University.

The 4-H Club award programs are backed by the donations of more than half a hundred United States business enterprises and foundations. They have consistently supported the 4-H Club program, several of them for 40 years or more.
