Arlington Ranch To Host League Conservation Day

The Oregon Wheat Growers League's annual conservation field day will be held Wednesday, June 12, on the Pettyjohn and Weatherford ranch near Arlington in Gilliam county.

Announcement of the event and of the joint winners of the 1962 Conservation Man of the Year, sponsored by the Wheat League, was made by the League president, L. E. Kaseberg.

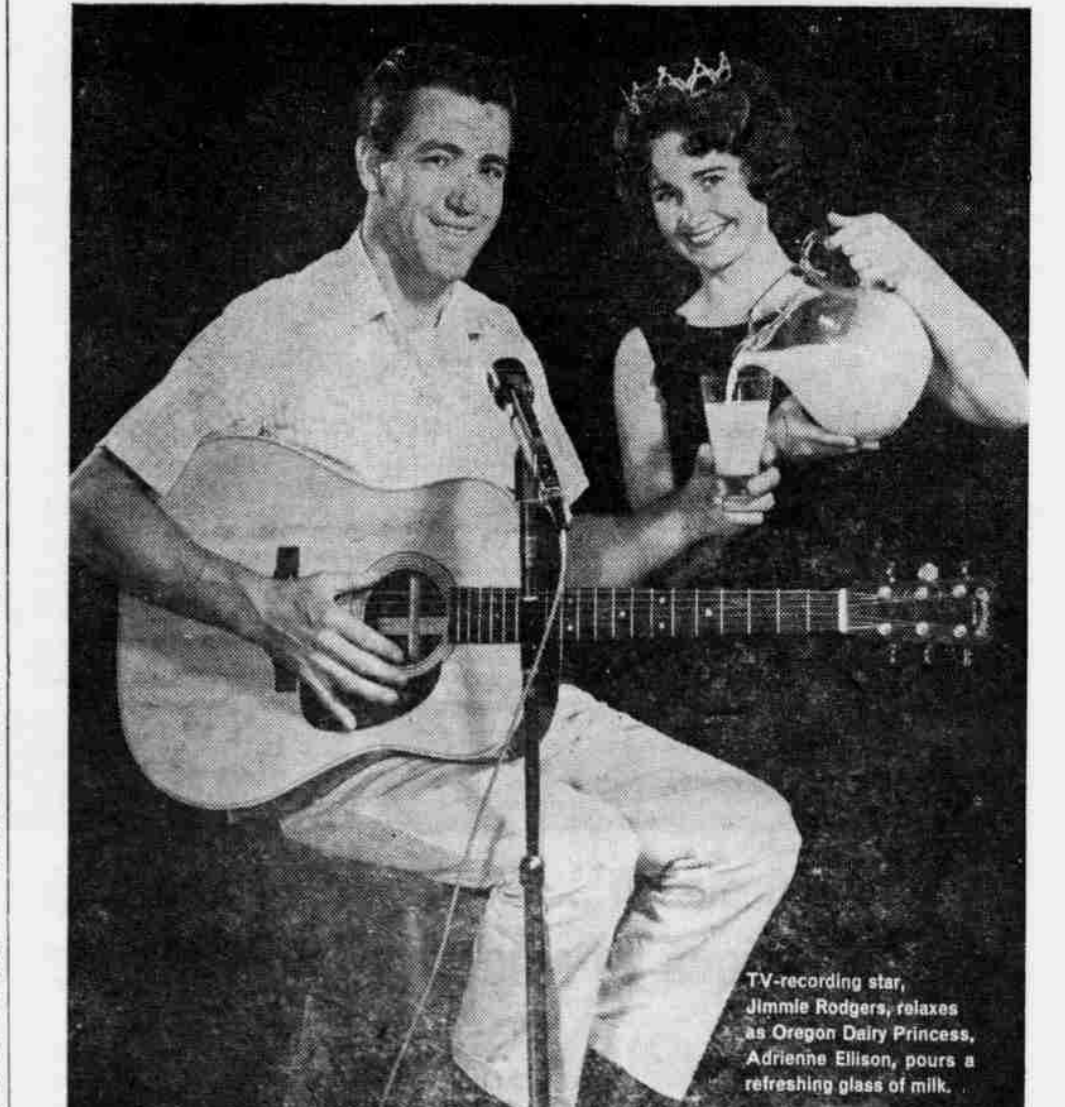

The Pettyjohn and Weatherford Circle W ranches are farmed as a partnership by Lee Pettyjohn of Arlington, with Harrison Weatherford, Albany, and Dr. John Runkel, Portland, as operating partners. Total acreage of the family-owned ranches exceeds 16,000 acres, of which 6,860 acres are cultivated.

Conservation practices followed today on the Circle W Ranches stem from those initiated by Mark V. Rutherford, pioneering farming conservationist who died last year. Rutherford, an Albany attorney, added to the original family land in 1919 when he purchased what is now the headquarters ranch near Arlington.

Mechanical innovations introduced by the senior Rutherford during the early '30s included the first set of deep furrow drills used in Oregon and the first crawler diesel tractor west of the Mississippi, "Old Tusco," as the tractor was dubbed, made farming history when it plowed 46 days and nights at an operating cost of less than 8c per acre.

The conservation field day, which is open to the public, commences at 10:30 a.m. Following welcoming ceremonies and remarks by David Childs, Wheat League program chairman, and proprietor Lee Pettyjohn, a free lunch will be held at the headquarters ranch.

Dr. J. H. Jensen, president of Oregon State University, will be the featured luncheon speaker, after which a tour of the ranch will give other grain growers and the general public an opportunity to view the conservation and management programs which won the annual award.
