

Morrow County 4-H, FFA Place High at Show

Morrow county 4-H members and Heppner High's Future Farmer chapter members placed high in the Junior Livestock show at The Dalles last week, Joe Hay, county extension agent, said.

Morrow 4-H members in beef placed second with their county herd, consisting of five animals owned by three or more members. Dale Van Blokland took reserve grand champion with his steer and Mitchell Ashbeck of Pine City won first with his heavy Hereford steer.

In medium Herefords, Dale Van Blokland's steer was second in the class; Terry Greenup won third; Dale Van Blokland fourth; Roland Ekstrom fifth; and Sue Greenup eighth.

Maureen Doherty won second with her light Hereford.

In hogs, Morrow won third with its county herd, and David Anderson's crossbred (Palouse and Yorkshire) was reserve champion. Mitchell Ashbeck won reserve champion with his pen of three hogs, and David and Doug Anderson and Ashbeck won B group swine herdsman.

In sheep, Morrow was fifth with its county flock and won A group in sheep herdsman. Bob Harris won first place with his Suffolk lamb.

Maureen Doherty was second in the intermediate class of sheep showmanship, and she also was second in the intermediate class in beef showmanship. Sue Greenup was third in junior class of beef showmanship and Roland Ekstrom was fourth in senior class.

Terry Greenup was sixth high individual livestock judge with 694 points out of a possible 900.

Gerald Jonasson, FFA advisor, did not report results of his boys' work to the paper, but news releases from The Dalles show that Tony Doherty was second with his heavy Hereford and Larry Monagle was second with his medium weight Hereford. Kenny Wright received a second place with his pen of three lambs.

Hay said that 4-H lambs sold very well at the sale, bringing 35c to 50c per pound. Steers ran 27c to 28c with not too many buyers and hogs brought around 30c.

Among local buyers were Ekstrom Farm Chemicals, Bank of Eastern Oregon, Morrow County Grain Growers, Harold Wright and Don Greenup.

The George Rugg family moved their house trailer from their winter quarters at Six Mile, below Boardman, to their Parker's Mill summer range, this week.
