Timber Harvest In Oregon Tops Cut During '61

Oregon harvested eight and one-half billion board feet of timber in 1962, to maintain its quarter century lead in log production among the states, according to figures just released by State Forester Dwight L. Phipps. This was well over a billion board feet above last year and the highest in the past six years, except for 1959. Although the total is below the production level of the years 1951-1956, it is greater than all years prior to that time.

Morrow county's cut was 44,459,000 board feet. Of the 8,500,038,000 board feet harvested this past year some 4,099,082,000 board feet or 48 percent was produced on private lands; 3,074,900,000 board feet or about 36 percent on National Forests; 1,104,042,000 board feet or nearly 13 percent from Bureau of Land Management forests; 168,987,000 board feet on State managed forest lands and 53,027,000 board feet from Indian lands. This was an increase over 1961 in the three primary landholder categories of 663 million board feet on National Forest lands; 244 million board feet on private lands and 209 million board feet on Bureau of Land Management lands.

Lane county retained its lead in log production, acquired last year from Douglas county, by marking up a total of 1,709,081,000 board feet of timber harvested. Douglas county, leading producer during 1949-60, was a strong second with 1,318,699,000 board feet. Linn county made third place for the second year in a row with 617,913,000 board feet, some 69 million over last year. It held second and third position steadily during 1942 through 1950. Coos and Curry counties were fourth and fifth, as they were last year, with volumes of 522,979,000 and 491,190,000 board feet respectively dropping from their usual third and fourth of the two years previous.

In the forests of eastern Oregon, Klamath county, the biggest timber producer up until 1951, stepped into first place for the second time in three years with a volume harvest of 248,715,000 board feet. Grant county, occupying an undisputed first place from 1951 through 1959 came up second best with a volume of 173,464,000 board feet. Lake county managed a third, having maintained this status or better since 1953, with a current volume of 167,652,000 board feet.

The tabulation of log production has no direct relationship to lumber production of the state, since some of the logs go to adjacent states, while there is also a volume of imports. Too, large stocks of logs can be carried over from one year to the next in cold decks, rafts and booms.

Tuttle Starts Job For Western Wheat

Western Wheat Associates has announced that Winn Tuttle, recently appointed as the Washington, D.C., representative for the growers organization, has taken up his new duties in the nation's capital.

Tuttle, until last month administrator of the Oregon Wheat Commission, succeeds Clancy Jean, who resigned from the wheat association to serve in the Department of Agriculture. Jean will remain in Washington as a feed and grain specialist with the government agency.

A graduate of Panhandle A & M College in Oklahoma, Tuttle received a master's degree in agriculture from Oregon State College before associating himself with the Willowa county Grain Growers in Enterprise. He served the farm cooperative for 12 years, 10 of them as its manager, until he was appointed to the Wheat Commission in 1961.
