

Street Parade To Start at 10 Saturday Morning

and Main Street Cowboys of Pendleton, and the Pendleton Drum and Bugle Corps, and the Ione Fire Department.

Among groups who have been working hard on local floats are the Soroptimist club, the Mother's club and Rainbow for Girls, all of Heppner.

In building floats, organizations are following the theme, "Songs—Old and New," chosen in a contest conducted by the Chamber of Commerce earlier this year.

Bands from Heppner, Ione and Riverside will be in the parade, and others may also come to take part.

Courts have been invited from many other towns and cities, but it is not known how many will arrive.

The parade will go south on Main and May street and turn east to Chase (Farley service station corner). Here the mounted groups will fall out, perhaps continuing to the rodeo grounds, and the kids will also disband. Remainder of the parade will go south to Cannon, then turn west to Main again where it will turn north and go back by the reviewing stand in downtown Heppner. Here Queen Sandra Eubanks will award prizes won by the floats.

Judging of floats will be done promptly at 9:30, so it is imperative for all to be present at that time. Randall Peterson, in charge of judging, states:

Orville Cutsforth will have charge of assembling the parade, and Jim Farley will assist. Announcers at the reviewing stand will be Harold Erwin and LaVerne Van Marter.

Those taking part in the parade will compete for $475 in prizes offered by the sponsoring Heppner-Morrow County Chamber of Commerce. Many prizes are offered in all categories from the kids on up to the most lavish floats.

Cowboys to Gather For 1963 Rodeo; Horse Show Due

Admission to the rodeo shows will remain at the popular prices of last year, $2 for adults at the Saturday and Sunday afternoon shows, $1 for students; $1 for adults at the Saturday night show and 50c for children.

Those driving to the show will be asked this year to go to the upper gate to the fair grounds and turn in. Tickets will not be sold to the customers until they are parked and headed for the stands. The regular rodeo gate will be kept closed except for a few officials' cars. In this manner it is hoped to expedite parking without congesting the highway while selling tickets in the cars at the gate, Gimbel states.

Peterson Returns From Alaskan Tour

Judge Oscar Peterson returned Tuesday, impressed by the great vastness and beauty of the Alaskan country. He was one of 150 passengers aboard the Yukon Star, carrying him on an 8-day vacation tour. The boat went by inland passage as far north as Skagway.

Among the inspiring sights were the massive glaciers. Being aboard the boat most of the time, he was limited to sight-seeing and unable to enter into any hunting or fishing on the trip.

NO, THESE are not bronc riders for the rodeo but a few of the men who participated in the Chamber of Commerce "ride-in" Monday. The horses were experienced, but the riders... well... From left are Ed (Leather-Bustin) Gonty, Oliver (Texas Ranger) Creswick, Dr. C. M. (Tonto) Wagner, and Galloping Jim Myers. Although the horses attained speeds up to two miles per hour, not a single rider was thrown! (G-T Photo)

Businessmen Ride To Chamber Meet

Some 12 or 14 members of the Chamber of Commerce made good on their promise to ride on horseback to their Monday luncheon meeting to publicize the Morrow County Fair and Rodeo, and they had a good time doing it.

But they couldn't have done it, if a number of girls in the community hadn't given them a big assist by lending them horses for the occasion.

The group assembled at Tum-A-Lum Lumber Co. and rode in double file to the First National Bank corner, then turned east one block before making a U-turn and proceeding back to the Wagon Wheel Cafe. No speed records were broken.

The event drew a good crowd of amused spectators who couldn't say too much for the horsemanship displayed but might have had a good word for the spirit shown by the businessmen.

Frank Turner and Jim Farley worked out plans for the event, down to the hitching rail at the Wagon wheel. It looks now as if it might become an annual event.

Among girls loaning horses were Nancy Cleveland, Vicki Barratt, Maralee Murray, Shannon Mahoney, Barbara Gribble, Lisa Collins, Cheryl Bellenbrock, Kay Daggett, and Deanne Wagner.

Chamber members asked that a great big "Thank you!" be extended to the girls for their help.

TV and Accountant Offices are Moved

Offices of Carl Spaulding, accountant, and Heppner TV, Inc., have been moved to the former Heppner Auto Parts building at 289 N. Main Street. Spaulding announces:

They were formerly located in the building about a half block north, now owned by Jack Cox.

Telephone number for both Spaulding and Heppner TV is 676-9205.

Mrs. Melvin Dixon returned Monday morning from a trip to Southern California, where she had gone in company with Mrs. Lucille Owen and Miss Caroline Moyer. Miss Moyer will teach in secondary schools at Long Beach, Calif., and her sister, Mrs. Owen, will live with her. Miss Moyer recently returned from a 10-year teaching tenure of children of military personnel in Japan. Mrs. Dixon visited relatives there during the week before her return home.

118 Cooperators Enter Recreation Field in Oregon

One or more income-producing recreation enterprises were established by 118 land owners and operators cooperating with their locally-managed soil and water conservation districts during fiscal year 1963, the U. S. Soil Conservation Service announced.

An additional 145 district cooperators said they intend to establish one or more recreation enterprises. In all, 699 district cooperators considered including recreation for profit in their operations in the course of receiving technical help from the USDA's Soil Conservation Service during the fiscal year.

A total of 15 district cooperators switched from livestock, dairy, crops, fruits and similar farming activities to recreation enterprises as a primary source of income, SCS said. This involved 1,763 acres of land. Another 29 cooperators said they will convert 6,422 acres of land from present livestock and cropping patterns to recreation as a primary source of income.

The income-producing recreation enterprises established and planned include vacation farms, picnic and sports centers, fishing waters, camping and nature recreation areas, hunting areas, and shooting preserves.

State Conservationist, T. P. Helseth, who directs rural development and conservation activities of SCS in Oregon, said the outdoor recreation progress in districts is "remarkable."

"That so much could be accomplished in just a few months of emphasis on this phase of rural areas development indicates both the need for recreation developments in rural Oregon and the splendid leadership of soil and water conservation districts," he said.

The report prepared by the Soil Conservation Service, which has responsibility for USDA leadership in working with private landowners in developing income producing outdoor recreation, shows that interest in developing rural recreation enterprises is not confined to areas surrounding expanding metropolitan centers but is widespread throughout the 60 soil and water conservation districts that now include 69 per cent of the total area of the state; 90 per cent of the farms; and 77 per cent of the farm area.

On a national basis, 9,816 SCD cooperators have entered the outdoor recreation field and an additional 9,075 intend to establish one or more recreation enterprises. In all, 39,685 district cooperators considered including recreation for profit in their operations.

Barratts Honored

Mr. and Mrs. Garnett Barratt were honored at a party on Sunday, August 18, by Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Hamlin at the Hamlin's mountain cabin. Guests for dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bedford, Mrs. Bea Bedford, the honored guests and the host couple. The Barratts also enjoyed having breakfast there with the Hamlins.

IRRIGON NEWS

Rev. John H. Kenney, District Presbyterian, drove to Prairie City Wednesday, to conduct a business meeting in the Assembly of God Church there. Rev. Kenney stayed overnight with Rev. and Mrs. Harryman, pastors of the Assembly of Good church at John Day, and returned to Irrigon Thursday.

Mrs. Tom Riser, John and Jim of Portland were Monday callers at the Rees Morgan residence.

Board Views School Sites

Morrow county's school board spent Tuesday afternoon and evening in the Boardman and Irrigon areas, checking sites that have been under consideration for possible relocation of Riverside High school.

A contract signed by the former school board is not considered a legal contract because it had not been finally approved by the Corps of Engineers before the new board took office, a representative of the Corps told the directors. This contract called for locating the school in the Boardman townsite.

The directors checked the possible sites during the afternoon as a matter of review since only one, Harvey Warner, was posted on them as a member of the "old" board. Warner, together with William H. Parker of Irrigon and Roy Partlow and Mayor Dewey West, both of Boardman, led the tour, visiting sites in Irrigon, Boardman and in-between.

At a 7 p.m. meeting the directors were joined by representatives of the Corps, Rupert Kennedy, representing the State Department of Planning and Development, and James H. Dwinell of the aero-space division of the Boeing Co.

It was pointed out by the Engineers that if another site were chosen, it would have to be approved by the Chief of Engineers, and there could be no guarantee whether he would decide for or against it. This would take about two or three months.

The Engineers only recommendation to the board is that a site be chosen that would best serve the public. With the delay now scheduled in filling the John Day reservoir—to be in 1968—there is still 1 1/2 years time before the deadline of completing the contract.

Dwinell said that tests that Boeing might undertake at its Morrow county site would last for a period of only a few seconds several times per month. Testing will be done in the lower center of the project area, some 14 miles from Ione, 11 miles from Boardman and 20 miles from Irrigon. Boeing's high-powered motor noises consist of short, sharp pistol-like reports, Dwinell said. Noises from rockets would be in the low frequency ranges, slower in dissipating. The loudest sound contemplated in the foreseeable future would be like that of thunder 10 to 20 miles away for a few seconds. He said that for those inside a building—such as a school—the noise would be even less.

Dwinell said that the company has a test area just north of Seattle, closer to population centers, but that the company is seeking a site farther away from population. At Cape Canaveral, people live within a few miles of launching pads, he said.

The company will seek to fire its tests under most favorable conditions and is working on atmospheric tests so that it may endeavor to carry as much sound as possible away from areas where people live.

Dwinell made it clear that Boeing has to work with people and communities wherever it goes and is conscious of things that may be disturbing to them.

The matter of the noise associated with the Boeing project has been the subject of considerable discussion in selecting the new site for Riverside.

Although not designed as a public meeting, the session brought out several Irrigon and Boardman residents as interested spectators.

Frank Parkers Take Trip to Klondike

Old memories will be relived by Frank S. Parker of Heppner on his current trip to Alaska, the Yukon territory and the Klondike district where he once panned gold.

Accompanied by Mrs. Parker, he left Thursday, being taken to the train from here by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoskins Jr. The Parkers were to fly north from Vancouver, B. C., for the guided tour to the Yukon territory after which they will return home by boat on the Inside Passage.

They expect to be on the trip about three weeks. Parker was in the territory twice before, once in 1894 and again in 1904.

Mrs. Partlow, chairman of a citizens committee from Irrigon, and Parker presented Irrigon's case again for location of the school in that city. They were on a mimeographed sheet given to the board.

After the trip to the sites in the afternoon, Irrigon mothers served ice cold melons to the group in the elementary school cafeteria. Later, Irrigon was host again to a turkey dinner at Carrie's Cafe.

The evening meeting was in Riverside High at Boardman. Consideration of the site for the relocated school will be brought up again at an ensuing meeting of the board. Next meeting is scheduled for Monday night, August 9, at the courthouse in Heppner.

For Your Protection Turner, Van Marter and Bryant Answers Your Insurance Questions

QUESTION: How does an insurance company settle a claim for a damaged tire? Do they always replace it with a new tire?

ANSWER: The usual settlement is on a mileage basis. If the tire had half its wear left, the company would pay half its cost. If the tire had three-fourths of its wear left, the company would pay three-fourths of its cost and so forth.
